Escape Short Lived

A man wanted in Tupelo, Miss., on a warrant charging felonious false pretense was arrested in Sikeston Sunday after escaping custody of a Sikeston police officer.

The man is identified as Richard Tate, alias Richard Steele, police said. He is being helf for Mississippi authorities.

Tate was arrested at about 12:30 p.m. Sunday at 110 Woodlawn, it was reported. The asked the arresting police officer if he might change clothes before going to the station. To change clothes Tate was allowed to go into another room of the house, it was learned today.

Eddie Michael, Scott county deputy, arrested Tate at about 4 p.m. Sunday, Chief of Police Arthur Bruce said today. The arrest was made when Michael saw Tate sitting on a porch on Lion St., the chief said.

Chief Bruce said the police department was contacted today by authorities in Huntington, W. Va. They are checking to find if a car reported stolen in West Virginia and abandoned in the Chicago area was taken by Tate, Chief Bruce said.

Several Sikeston policemen joined in the search after the escape.

Chief Bruce said today the nature of the warrant from Mississippi indicated that Tate apparently was connected with the passing of some bad checks.

In other police activity, three men were arrested over the weekend and charged with driving while intoxicated. Charged were Clyde Eftink of Oran; Charles Otero, 405 South Scott, and Riley Dejarnet of Essex, police said. Otero also was charged with driving an improperly registered vehicle. Dejarnet also was charged with driving without an operator's license.

Puxico Man Killed in I-55 Crash

A Puxico man was killed when his car hit the rear of a parked car off Interstate 55, 2½ miles south of Benton at 3:30 a.m. this morning.

Killed was John J. McGhee. Troopers said, a car driven by John O. Turk, 23, of Sikeston had pulled off the road and stopped and was hit by the McGhee car. The McGhee car burned, troopers reported.

He was a brother of Paul McGhee, prosecuting attorney of Stoddard County.

The occupant of the other vehicle was not hurt.

A 15-year-old pedestrian was killed on U. S. 67 near Mill Creek Sunday when he darted in front of a car driven by Ellis Goode of Alamo, Tenn.

Troopers said the victim, Wendell Kemp of Mill Creek, ran out of a private drive into the path of the car. Kemp's parents witnessed the tragedy.

Three persons were injured Sunday at 8 p.m. when a car driven by Harry Nolan, 22, of Catron ran off a gravel road and into a drainage ditch four miles west of Marston.

Taken to Pemiscot Memorial hospital at Hayti were Nolan, possible chest injuries; Faye Babb, 13, Marston, severe head cut, and Bonnie David, 16, Marston, dislocated right shoulder and face cuts.

James Larue, 30, of Canalou, sustained possible internal injuries when he lost control of his west bound car which hit a bridge railing and went into a drainage ditch filled with water, troopers said.

The accident occurred Sunday at 4 a.m. on Route H three miles west of Matthews.

Doris Duke Gives Version Of Accident

NEWPORT, R.I. AP - Tobacco heiress Doris Duke has told Newport police the death of Eduardo Tirella, 42, of Dover, N.J., last Friday was "accidental" and occurred in the process of "something we'd done a hundred times before."

Newport Police Chief Joseph A. Radice said today Miss Duke, 53, gave her account of the fatal accident to Lt. Frank H. Walsh at her "Rough Point" mansion on Bellevue Avenue in Newport Sunday.

Radice said Miss Duke told police she had been sitting on the passenger side of a late-model station wagon operated by Tirella as the car was leaving the grounds of the estate.

Miss Duke said when they reached the heavy gates, Tirella jumped out to open them and she shifted into the driver's seat to pull the car out into the street. "It was something we'd done a hundred times before," she told police.

"Suddenly the car leaped forward and I was on top of him," Miss Duke told Walsh.

Tirella, an interior decorator and actor, had been crushed against the iron gates and then dragged across Bellevue Avenue and pinned under the car when it struck a tree.

A medical examiner said he died instantly of brain injuries.

Miss Duke was taken to Newport Hospital suffering from shock and face cuts and admitted for overnight observation.

Radice said the investigation of the incident was continuing and that he was awaiting the medical examiner's report on the victim before drawing any conclusions in the case.

13 Chain Saws Reported Stolen

J. M. Hays, owner of the company reported the theft to police at 7:15 a.m. today. The shop was closed at 1 p.m. Saturday and the theft occurred during the interval, Hays said.

Entrance was gained by taking the back door from the hinges and removing it. The cash register was not touched.

An inventory has not been made yet, Hays said. The chain saws were valued at $150 each. Police are investigating.

Though 50,000 Puerto Ricans are going north every year, the numbers of those returning to their island home are increasing each year. In 1963, 33,000 returned home. This is in sharp contrast to the 10,000 figure of the late 1950s.

Strategists Say War Not Election Issue

Most candidates interrupting their campaigning to check in now and then for major Senate and House roll calls report the voters are disturbed about the ever-enlarging conflict and frustrated by the apparent failure of peace efforts.

But how the average citizen will react to this at the polls Nov. 8 remains largely a mystery. One Democratic senator, seeking re-election, seemed to voice the sentiment of many of his colleagues.

"I know the people wish we didn't have this war on our hands and wonder why we ever got into it," he said. "They'd like to have it end but not many of them want to cut and run. I think most of them believe President Johnson is doing the best he can.

"My opponent hasn't found any way yet to blame me for the war and as far as I can tell it isn't an issue that will affect many votes one way or the other."

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has cautioned fellow Republicans against trying to make an issue of administration policy in Viet Nam. He feels that in war Americans ought to stand squarely behind the chief -- the only person, he says, who ultimately can call the signals on broad policy and grand strategy.

Johnson told a Newark, N.J., political rally last Friday that Republicans "don't know how to end the war in Viet Nam, except to criticize the commander in chief." While they don't admit it publicly. GOP campaigners generally acknowledge that is a fairly accurate description of their position.

Eisenhower says domestic issues such as government spending and inflation offer GOP candidates such better opportunity to capitalize at the polls.

Eisenhower still insists the United States "must do whatever is necessary to win" fast in Viet Nam.

But he says it is silly for anyone to conclude he is advocating use of nuclear weapons, which, he explained, would be felt by friend and foe alike.

But Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the senate Preparedness subcommittee, says the United States may have to use tactical nuclear weapons if it finds itself "in a land locked war with great hordes of men on the other side.

We may have to use tactical weapons under those circumstances, and I would, rather than see our armies cut to pieces and our men suffer undue loss," he said Sunday on the CBS television - radio program, "Face The Nation."

Barry Goldwater who said atomic weapons would not be helpful in North Viet Nam because there are no suitable targets. Kennedy appeared on the Mutual radio program "Reporters Roundup."

Johnson meets at the White House late today with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who came to the United States for the opening of the United Nations general assembly. Although nothing was said in advance about any agenda for their talk, Viet Nam was likely to figure in the discussion.

In other weekend developments:

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara arrived early today in Saigon for a four-day survey of U. S. needs in men, money and material for the war in Viet Nam.

At the Saigon airport, McNamara told newsmen the United States would never occupy the demilitarized zone -- the area dividing North and South Viet Nam -- with ground forces.

Ike Says 'Win Fast' Policy Doesn't Mean Nuclear Force

by MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower still insists "we must do whatever is necessary to win" fast in Viet Nam. But he calls it silly for anyone to conclude this means he favors U.S. use of nuclear weapons there.

The five-star general who led Allied forces to victory in Europe in World War II says it is an entirely different kind of war in Viet Nam — a guerrilla type which exposes friend and foe alike to any weapons used. Only President Johnson, Eisenhower adds, ultimately can call the signals on broad policy and grand strategy.

Eisenhower says his only advice is that it ought to be a strategy aimed at winning quickly and putting an end to loss of American lives.

But to anyone who got the idea — and some did — that in recent remarks he was calling for or even suggesting use of nuclear weapons to achieve a swift victory, Eisenhower — in response to a quest for comment — has this to say:

"This is silly. How would you use nuclear weapons in Viet Nam? I ask: Do you have any idea?

"Personally, I would say whatever the President finds out he must do, I shall not criticize him. I do not know whether this war is going to escalate or de-escalate or anything else.

"I do know we must do whatever is necessary to win as quickly as possible. If not, the war will grow in costs, both in money and lives, and the nation's morale will be lowered."

And he says:

"The morale of a nation is just as important a factor — probably a more important factor — in determining its capacity to lead as is its military or economic strength."

Eisenhower, who will observe his 76th birthday at his farm home here Friday, differs sharply with the Johnson administration in the domestic policy area. But he shows no little irritation at the thought that anyone would attempt to drive a wedge between him and Johnson on the matter of how to conduct the Viet Nam war.

This does not mean, necessarily, that Eisenhower endorses all the fine print of Viet Nam policy. But he strongly believes that in war Americans ought to stand squarely behind the commander in chief.

In that connection the former president cautions fellow Republicans seeking election to Congress Nov. 8 against trying to make an issue of administration policy in Viet Nam. He thinks such an effort would be very risky from a political standpoint, and that domestic issues such as spending and inflation danger offer GOP candidates much better opportunity to capitalize at the polls.

Hog Cholera At Anniston

Dr. George C. Stiles, state veterinarian, announced today that there is a suspected outbreak of hog cholera in the Anniston area of Mississippi county.

All swine producers in the Anniston area were urged by Dr. Stiles to have their hogs vaccinated.

Anyone who may know of an outbreak of hog cholera should telephone a veterinarian or telephone Dr. Stiles, at 636-7166, Jefferson City.

The Missouri department of agriculture and the animal health division of the United States department of agriculture are trying to eradicate hog cholera. This goal can be accomplished more rapidly if swine producers will observe these precautions:

1. Vaccinate routinely. 2. Follow shipping rules and regulations. 3. Report outbreaks to the state veterinarian. 4. Observe quarantines. 5. Dispose of affected hogs. The only acceptable method is incineration, burying at least four feet below the surface by a licensed rendering company. 6. Clean and disinfect all infected premises. 7. Cook all garbage fed to swine, even from the producers household. 8. Learn the facts about hog cholera.

Inez Slashes Into Mexico

BROWNSVILLE, Tex(AP)— Hurricane Inez smashed into the Mexican coast north of Tampico with 135-mile-an-hour winds today on a course that missed South Texas and its multimillion-dollar citrus crop.

Hurricane warnings for the Texas coast were lowered this morning as hundreds of residents in the Brownsville area started returning to their homes which they had evacuated as a precautionary measure. Skies were mostly clear in South Texas with only a few scattered showers predicted.

The Weather Bureau at New Orleans reported that Tampico, a city of 200,000 population, had wind gusts of 90 miles an hour.

The center of the 17-day-old storm, which has taken at least 150 lives since developing out in the Caribbean, at midmorning was located about 30 miles northwest of Tampico, more than 225 miles to the southwest of Brownsville.

The highest winds, which were estimated at 135 miles an hour when it struck the coast, had dropped to about 100 miles an hour when it struck the coast, had dropped to about 100 miles an hour near the center as it moved inland on a west-southwest course of 5 to 8 miles an hour.

Inez took an erratic course as she neared land. Early today she veered directly to the west.

Wallace Rejects Both Johnson and Nixon

Thus Wallace, campaigning for his wife to succeed him, has set the stage for another presidential venture. And he has answered Republican critics who have sought to tie h. a, through party identification, to President Johnson's administration.

Johnson's demonstrated unpopularity in Alabama has become a major issue in a race which will give the state its first woman governor in history or its first Republican governor in almost a century.

Wallace's wife, Lurleen — running as a standin for her husband because he is prohibited by law from succeeding himself — is a heavy favorite to defeat her GOP opponent, Congressman James D. Martin, and an Independent, Dr. Carl Robinson, in the Nov. 8 election.

Wallace, a symbol of segregationist resistance in the Deep South, is counting heavily on his defiance of federal desegregation orders to put his wife into office. Again and again, as he speaks in her behalf, he has promised an unending struggle for "the right to run our own affairs."

He has never said unequivocally that he will run for president in 1968, as he did in 1964. But he has told campaign crowds that he "just might" be a candidate "unless the major parties give us someone (a conservative) we can vote for."

And then he systematically rules out every Democrat or Republican thus far mentioned as a nominee, including former Vice President Nixon, who is Rep. Martin's choice.

Wallace says Nixon was partly responsible for the use of troops to integrate Central High School at Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 and that Nixon supported civil rights bills.

"Nixon stands for the same things Lyndon B. Johnson is for," says the governor. "So what do you gain if you defeat Lyndon Johnson with Richard Milhous Nixon? You're jumping from the frying pan into the fire."

Martin, who almost defeated veteran Sen. Lister Hill four years ago and then was elected to the House in the 1964 Alabama landslide for Barry Goldwater, has sought to make an issue of Wallace's presidential ambitions.

He argues that a third party race for president would split the anti-Johnson vote and help re-elect the President.

Wallace's reply to that is, "Sure, we want to hurt them. We want to hurt both parties. Then maybe they will pay attention to us."

Fire Razes Bell City Farm House

BELL CITY-- A single story wood frame farm house was destroyed by fire eight miles southwest of Bell City early today. No one was injured.

The Sikeston volunteer fire department was called at 1:05 a.m. and kept the fire from spreading to other farm buildings.

Firemen stayed with the fire about two hours, wetting down nearby buildings.

The house was beyond saving when firemen arrived, James V. Skelton, a Sikeston volunteer, fireman, said today.

The house was owned and occupied by the Guy Lewis family. Lewis told firemen he was awakened by crackling noises in a clothes closet in the southwest corner of the house.

After discovering the fire and awakening the family, Lewis called the Bell City fire department but was unable to make contact. He then placed a call to the Sikeston department.

Lewis told firemen that the blaze possibly started from electrical wiring in the closet. A smoke house and tool shed near the house were not damaged.

Launius Elected To Head Bureau

S. L. Binford of Puxico was named vice president.

Elected to the board of directors were Mrs. Dalton Hill, Ardeth Jones, Mrs. Glendon Cain, Wayne Sides, Mrs. Joe Riddle, William E. White, Mrs. Alva Griffy, Jim Jeffress and Mrs. Robert Rendleman.

Five Treated for Weekend Injuries

Five emergency patients were treated at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Saturday and Sunday.

Furniture Store In Dexter Robbed

DEXTER -- Half of a walkie talkie set, four transistor radios, an electric shaver, a tape recorder and watch were stolen from the Price Furniture Store over the weekend in a burglary discovered when Raymond Price, the owner, opened the establishment.

Entrance was made by forcing a rear window.

Fireman Called As Trailer Overturns

DEXTER--Firemen stood by after a trailer overturned north of Bernie off highway 25 but did not catch fire. They were called at 8:43 a.m. Dean Crowe, Bernie, was the driver.

Machines Broken At Anchor Toy

Seven vending machines were pried open and the coin boxes pilfered in the Anchor Toy Corporation plant, 1620 East Malone, during the weekend.

A crowbar, a screwdriver and a hammer were found near the machines. No estimate of money taken is available, Brad Shain, assistant plant manager, reported today.

Shain said he discovered the machines were damaged at 3 p.m. Sunday. The last crew working during the weekend left Saturday night.

A door in the rear of the building was unlocked. It may have been left unlocked or it may have been unlocked from the outside, Shain said.

LBJ to Feel out Gromyko

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several proposals for improving U.S.-Soviet relations, in spite of sharp differences over the Vietnamese war, are due for discussion here late today between President Johnson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The White House announced the two men will meet at 5 p.m. shortly after Johnson's return here from a weekend at his Texas ranch.

There appeared to be no doubt Johnson would urge upon Gromyko the U.S. view that the Soviet Union should do everything possible to bring the Vietnamese war to an end. The U.S.S.R. is a chief supplier of weapons to North Viet Nam and recently concluded a new aid deal with that country.

Administration advisers, preparing for the Gromyko conference, were deeply interested in reports from Moscow that the Communist party paper Pravda argued in an article Sunday that a halt of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam was the main requirement for improving ties between Moscow and Washington. Previously, the emphasis has been on the U.S. ending the war and getting out of Viet Nam.

President Johnson has offered through U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg at the United Nations to suspend bombing if the North Vietnamese promise to de-escalate the war. But, even if nothing comes of the bombing suspension issue, the Soviet response to Johnson's speech Friday, appealing for better relations, reflects a more friendly attitude than usual in the recent past.

On major international questions, which officials confidently expect to arise, one of the foremost is a pending proposal for a pact to outlaw the use of outer space for military purposes and dedicate the moon and other celestial bodies to peaceful exploration and research.

U. S. sources cautioned against any great expectations from the White House session, which was in the nature of a courtesy visit since Gromyko is in this country attending the U.N. General Assembly fall session.

But the mere fact of a Gromyko trip to Washington was a step above the icy atmosphere that set in with the massive U. S. military involvement in Viet Nam in 1965.

A year ago Gromyko stayed away from the U. S. capital, though he went to New York as usual for the annual U.N. opening and had stopped at the White House in previous years.

The Kremlin still supports North Viet Nam against what it terms American aggression, and it has served notice it will not move for peace talks until Hanoi wants them. Gromyko spurned another peace bid in New York Saturday, which had been presented by British Foreign Secretary George Brown.

What appears new is a Soviet interest in possible deals with the West on matters other than Viet Nam. And a major reason for this, in the opinion of U.S. analysts, is that Communist China's Red Guard convulsion has heavily damaged Peking in her rivalry with the Soviet Union for leadership of the Communist camp.

According to this theory, Moscow is now so far ahead in the Sino-Soviet contest that the Kremlin feels freer to pursue its own foreign policy ends regardless of Chinese charges of Soviet collusion with the United States.

Johnson laid a public foundation for future U.S.-Soviet relations in his major European policy speech last Friday. He favored a search for agreements despite differences over Viet Nam, and suggested a mutual reduction of forces in Europe.

Chances for progress are believed better on smaller steps than on major cold war issues, but U. S. diplomats still expect no sudden Kremlin friendliness toward the West.

Scattered Frost Predicted Tonight

KANSAS CITY AP -- Missouri's temperatures by morning will get well down into the 30s and the weatherman says scattered frost is likely for much of the state.

Highs Tuesday will be from mid 60s to lower 70s.

Coldest spot in the state this morning was St. Joseph with a reading of 31. Maryville and Kirksville had 35.

Temperatures for the next five days will average 5 to 10 degrees below normal in the east and south and near normal in the northwest.

J. M. Hays, owner of the company reported the theft to police at 7:15 a.m. today. The shop was closed at 1 p.m. Saturday and the theft occurred during the interval, Hays said.

Entrance was gained by taking the back door from the hinges and removing it. The cash register was not touched.

An inventory has not been made yet, Hays said. The chain saws were valued at $150 each. Police are investigating.

Though 50,000 Puerto Ricans are going north every year, the numbers of those returning to their island home are increasing each year. In 1963, 33,000 returned home. This is in sharp contrast to the 10,000 figure of the late 1950s.

Strategists Say War Not Election Issue

Most candidates interrupting their campaigning to check in now and then for major Senate and House roll calls report the voters are disturbed about the ever-enlarging conflict and frustrated by the apparent failure of peace efforts.

But how the average citizen will react to this at the polls Nov. 8 remains largely a mystery. One Democratic senator, seeking re-election, seemed to voice the sentiment of many of his colleagues.

"I know the people wish we didn't have this war on our hands and wonder why we ever got into it," he said. "They'd like to have it end but not many of them want to cut and run. I think most of them believe President Johnson is doing the best he can.

"My opponent hasn't found any way yet to blame me for the war and as far as I can tell it isn't an issue that will affect many votes one way or the other."

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has cautioned fellow Republicans against trying to make an issue of administration policy in Viet Nam. He feels that in war Americans ought to stand squarely behind the chief -- the only person, he says, who ultimately can call the signals on broad policy and grand strategy.

Johnson told a Newark, N.J., political rally last Friday that Republicans "don't know how to end the war in Viet Nam, except to criticize the commander in chief." While they don't admit it publicly. GOP campaigners generally acknowledge that is a fairly accurate description of their position.

Eisenhower says domestic issues such as government spending and inflation offer GOP candidates such better opportunity to capitalize at the polls.

Eisenhower still insists the United States "must do whatever is necessary to win" fast in Viet Nam.

But he says it is silly for anyone to conclude he is advocating use of nuclear weapons, which, he explained, would be felt by friend and foe alike.

But Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the senate Preparedness subcommittee, says the United States may have to use tactical nuclear weapons if it finds itself "in a land locked war with great hordes of men on the other side.

We may have to use tactical weapons under those circumstances, and I would, rather than see our armies cut to pieces and our men suffer undue loss," he said Sunday on the CBS television - radio program, "Face The Nation."

Barry Goldwater who said atomic weapons would not be helpful in North Viet Nam because there are no suitable targets. Kennedy appeared on the Mutual radio program "Reporters Roundup."

Johnson meets at the White House late today with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who came to the United States for the opening of the United Nations general assembly. Although nothing was said in advance about any agenda for their talk, Viet Nam was likely to figure in the discussion.

In other weekend developments:

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara arrived early today in Saigon for a four-day survey of U. S. needs in men, money and material for the war in Viet Nam.

At the Saigon airport, McNamara told newsmen the United States would never occupy the demilitarized zone -- the area dividing North and South Viet Nam -- with ground forces.

Ike Says 'Win Fast' Policy Doesn't Mean Nuclear Force

by MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower still insists "we must do whatever is necessary to win" fast in Viet Nam. But he calls it silly for anyone to conclude this means he favors U.S. use of nuclear weapons there.

The five-star general who led Allied forces to victory in Europe in World War II says it is an entirely different kind of war in Viet Nam — a guerrilla type which exposes friend and foe alike to any weapons used. Only President Johnson, Eisenhower adds, ultimately can call the signals on broad policy and grand strategy.

Eisenhower says his only advice is that it ought to be a strategy aimed at winning quickly and putting an end to loss of American lives.

But to anyone who got the idea — and some did — that in recent remarks he was calling for or even suggesting use of nuclear weapons to achieve a swift victory, Eisenhower — in response to a quest for comment — has this to say:

"This is silly. How would you use nuclear weapons in Viet Nam? I ask: Do you have any idea?

"Personally, I would say whatever the President finds out he must do, I shall not criticize him. I do not know whether this war is going to escalate or de-escalate or anything else.

"I do know we must do whatever is necessary to win as quickly as possible. If not, the war will grow in costs, both in money and lives, and the nation's morale will be lowered."

And he says:

"The morale of a nation is just as important a factor — probably a more important factor — in determining its capacity to lead as is its military or economic strength."

Eisenhower, who will observe his 76th birthday at his farm home here Friday, differs sharply with the Johnson administration in the domestic policy area. But he shows no little irritation at the thought that anyone would attempt to drive a wedge between him and Johnson on the matter of how to conduct the Viet Nam war.

This does not mean, necessarily, that Eisenhower endorses all the fine print of Viet Nam policy. But he strongly believes that in war Americans ought to stand squarely behind the commander in chief.

In that connection the former president cautions fellow Republicans seeking election to Congress Nov. 8 against trying to make an issue of administration policy in Viet Nam. He thinks such an effort would be very risky from a political standpoint, and that domestic issues such as spending and inflation danger offer GOP candidates much better opportunity to capitalize at the polls.

Hog Cholera At Anniston

Dr. George C. Stiles, state veterinarian, announced today that there is a suspected outbreak of hog cholera in the Anniston area of Mississippi county.

All swine producers in the Anniston area were urged by Dr. Stiles to have their hogs vaccinated.

Anyone who may know of an outbreak of hog cholera should telephone a veterinarian or telephone Dr. Stiles, at 636-7166, Jefferson City.

The Missouri department of agriculture and the animal health division of the United States department of agriculture are trying to eradicate hog cholera. This goal can be accomplished more rapidly if swine producers will observe these precautions:

1. Vaccinate routinely. 2. Follow shipping rules and regulations. 3. Report outbreaks to the state veterinarian. 4. Observe quarantines. 5. Dispose of affected hogs. The only acceptable method is incineration, burying at least four feet below the surface by a licensed rendering company. 6. Clean and disinfect all infected premises. 7. Cook all garbage fed to swine, even from the producers household. 8. Learn the facts about hog cholera.

Inez Slashes Into Mexico

BROWNSVILLE, Tex(AP)— Hurricane Inez smashed into the Mexican coast north of Tampico with 135-mile-an-hour winds today on a course that missed South Texas and its multimillion-dollar citrus crop.

Hurricane warnings for the Texas coast were lowered this morning as hundreds of residents in the Brownsville area started returning to their homes which they had evacuated as a precautionary measure. Skies were mostly clear in South Texas with only a few scattered showers predicted.

The Weather Bureau at New Orleans reported that Tampico, a city of 200,000 population, had wind gusts of 90 miles an hour.

The center of the 17-day-old storm, which has taken at least 150 lives since developing out in the Caribbean, at midmorning was located about 30 miles northwest of Tampico, more than 225 miles to the southwest of Brownsville.

The highest winds, which were estimated at 135 miles an hour when it struck the coast, had dropped to about 100 miles an hour when it struck the coast, had dropped to about 100 miles an hour near the center as it moved inland on a west-southwest course of 5 to 8 miles an hour.

Inez took an erratic course as she neared land. Early today she veered directly to the west.

Wallace Rejects Both Johnson and Nixon

Thus Wallace, campaigning for his wife to succeed him, has set the stage for another presidential venture. And he has answered Republican critics who have sought to tie h. n, through party identification, to President Johnson's administration.

Johnson's demonstrated unpopularity in Alabama has become a major issue in a race which will give the state its first woman governor in history or its first Republican governor in almost a century.

Wallace's wife, Lurleen — running as a standin for her husband because he is prohibited by law from succeeding himself — is a heavy favorite to defeat her GOP opponent, Congressman James D. Martin, and an Independent, Dr. Carl Robinson, in the Nov. 8 election.

Wallace, a symbol of segregationist resistance in the Deep South, is counting heavily on his defiance of federal desegregation orders to put his wife into office. Again and again, as he speaks in her behalf, he has promised an unending struggle for "the right to run our own affairs."

He has never said unequivocally that he will run for president in 1968, as he did in 1964. But he has told campaign crowds that he "just might" be a candidate "unless the major parties give us someone (a conservative) we can vote for."

And then he systematically rules out every Democrat or Republican thus far mentioned as a nominee, including former Vice President Nixon, who is Rep. Martin's choice.

Wallace says Nixon was partly responsible for the use of troops to integrate Central High School at Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 and that Nixon supported civil rights bills.

"Nixon stands for the same things Lyndon B. Johnson is for," says the governor. "So what do you gain if you defeat Lyndon Johnson with Richard Milhous Nixon? You're jumping from the frying pan into the fire."

Martin, who almost defeated veteran Sen. Lister Hill four years ago and then was elected to the House in the 1964 Alabama landslide for Barry Goldwater, has sought to make an issue of Wallace's presidential ambitions.

He argues that a third party race for president would split the anti-Johnson vote and help re-elect the President.

Wallace's reply to that is, "Sure, we want to hurt them. We want to hurt both parties. Then maybe they will pay attention to us."

Fire Razes Bell City Farm House

BELL CITY-- A single story wood frame farm house was destroyed by fire eight miles southwest of Bell City early today. No one was injured.

The Sikeston volunteer fire department was called at 1:05 a.m. and kept the fire from spreading to other farm buildings.

Firemen stayed with the fire about two hours, wetting down nearby buildings.

The house was beyond saving when firemen arrived, James V. Skelton, a Sikeston volunteer, fireman, said today.

The house was owned and occupied by the Guy Lewis family. Lewis told firemen he was awakened by crackling noises in a clothes closet in the southwest corner of the house.

After discovering the fire and awakening the family, Lewis called the Bell City fire department but was unable to make contact. He then placed a call to the Sikeston department.

Lewis told firemen that the blaze possibly started from electrical wiring in the closet. A smoke house and tool shed near the house were not damaged.

Launius Elected To Head Bureau

S. L. Binford of Puxico was named vice president.

Elected to the board of directors were Mrs. Dalton Hill, Ardeth Jones, Mrs. Glendon Cain, Wayne Sides, Mrs. Joe Riddle, William E. White, Mrs. Alva Griffy, Jim Jeffress and Mrs. Robert Rendleman.

Furniture Store In Dexter Robbed

DEXTER -- Half of a walkie talkie set, four transistor radios, an electric shaver, a tape recorder and watch were stolen from the Price Furniture Store over the weekend in a burglary discovered when Raymond Price, the owner, opened the establishment.

Machines Broken At Anchor Toy

Seven vending machines were pried open and the coin boxes pilfered in the Anchor Toy Corporation plant, 1620 East Malone, during the weekend.

A crowbar, a screwdriver and a hammer were found near the machines. No estimate of money taken is available, Brad Shain, assistant plant manager, reported today.

Shain said he discovered the machines were damaged at 3 p.m. Sunday. The last crew working during the weekend left Saturday night.

A door in the rear of the building was unlocked. It may have been left unlocked or it may have been unlocked from the outside, Shain said.

LBJ to Feel out Gromyko

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several proposals for improving U.S.-Soviet relations, in spite of sharp differences over the Vietnamese war, are due for discussion here late today between President Johnson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The White House announced the two men will meet at 5 p.m. shortly after Johnson's return here from a weekend at his Texas ranch.

There appeared to be no doubt Johnson would urge upon Gromyko the U.S. view that the Soviet Union should do everything possible to bring the Vietnamese war to an end. The U.S.S.R. is a chief supplier of weapons to North Viet Nam and recently concluded a new aid deal with that country.

Administration advisers, preparing for the Gromyko conference, were deeply interested in reports from Moscow that the Communist party paper Pravda argued in an article Sunday that a halt of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam was the main requirement for improving ties between Moscow and Washington. Previously, the emphasis has been on the U.S. ending the war and getting out of Viet Nam.

President Johnson has offered through U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg at the United Nations to suspend bombing if the North Vietnamese promise to de-escalate the war. But, even if nothing comes of the bombing suspension issue, the Soviet response to Johnson's speech Friday, appealing for better relations, reflects a more friendly attitude than usual in the recent past.

On major international questions, which officials confidently expect to arise, one of the foremost is a pending proposal for a pact to outlaw the use of outer space for military purposes and dedicate the moon and other celestial bodies to peaceful exploration and research.

U. S. sources cautioned against any great expectations from the White House session, which was in the nature of a courtesy visit since Gromyko is in this country attending the U.N. General Assembly fall session.

But the mere fact of a Gromyko trip to Washington was a step above the icy atmosphere that set in with the massive U. S. military involvement in Viet Nam in 1965.

A year ago Gromyko stayed away from the U. S. capital, though he went to New York as usual for the annual U.N. opening and had stopped at the White House in previous years.

The Kremlin still supports North Viet Nam against what it terms American aggression, and it has served notice it will not move for peace talks until Hanoi wants them. Gromyko spurned another peace bid in New York Saturday, which had been presented by British Foreign Secretary George Brown.

What appears new is a Soviet interest in possible deals with the West on matters other than Viet Nam. And a major reason for this, in the opinion of U. S. analysts, is that Communist China's Red Guard convulsion has heavily damaged Peking in her rivalry with the Soviet Union for leadership of the Communist camp.

According to this theory, Moscow is now so far ahead in the Sino-Soviet contest that the Kremlin feels freer to pursue its own foreign policy ends regardless of Chinese charges of Soviet collusion with the United States.

Johnson laid a public foundation for future U.S.-Soviet relations in his major European policy speech last Friday. He favored a search for agreements despite differences over Viet Nam, and suggested a mutual reduction of forces in Europe.

Chances for progress are believed better on smaller steps than on major cold war issues, but U. S. diplomats still expect no sudden Kremlin friendliness toward the West.

Scattered Frost Predicted Tonight

KANSAS CITY AP -- Missouri's temperatures by morning will get well down into the 30s and the weatherman says scattered frost is likely for much of the state.

Highs Tuesday will be from mid 60s to lower 70s.

Coldest spot in the state this morning was St. Joseph with a reading of 31. Maryville and Kirksville had 35.

Temperatures for the next five days will average 5 to 10 degrees below normal in the east and south and near normal in the northwest.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:
NEWSPAPERS -- LIGHTS OF LIBERTY

Editor and Publisher Year Book reports that as of Sept. 30, 1964, the 1,763 daily newspapers in the United States had a combined circulation of 60,412,266.

This is the highest circulation in history and a 2.5 per cent increase over 1963.

Sunday papers numbered 561 with a circulation of 48,383,076. This is also a gain over 1963, up by 11 papers and a million and a half circulation.

All of which information is apropos of observing that the week of October 9-15 is National Newspaper Week.

These figures add up to a lot of newspapers. There can never be too many of them in a free land, however, for the quality of freedom depends in great measure on the news reporting, news analysis and news editorializing performed by an unfettered and competitive press.

The figures add up to a lot of readers, too, especially when we add some 8,000 weeklies with a circulation of more than 24 million. The circulation numbers overlap, of course; they include people who subscribe to more than one paper.

On the other hand, they do not include millions of others who are not counted in the paid circulation but who see and read and are otherwise exposed to newspapers.

It is safe to say that the individual in America today who does not read at least some part of some newspaper regularly is a pretty rare bird indeed.

Whenever any newspaper, large or small, goes out of business or is shut down by a strike, it is as if a light were turned off in the community it served.

No other communications medium fills so many and so varied needs of modern life - from want ads to advice columns, from society notes to vital statistics, from comics to sermons.

But all of these are secondary to a newspaper's reason for existence - of being a NEWSpaper. Yet in this day of almost instantaneous electronic dissemination of major news events, even this category has undergone fundamental change.

People look to their newspaper not just for headlines or spot news but the news behind the news. They want background, explanation, analysis to help them relate today's complex news to yesterday's and to enable them to understand tomorrow's news when it happens.

A newspaper is a light in its community and in its country. That is why totalitarian governments, which prosper in human darkness, must gag them. That is why freedom of the press was the first right to be catalogued in the Bill of Rights of the Constitution.

America has many such lights. Happily, the number is growing, despite the deaths of some and the merger of others. Each one of them contributes to the brilliance of the larger light of liberty.

LEARY'S SACRAMENTAL DRUG

MYSTICS, Dr. Timothy Leary says, "have always been ecumenical." Leary means that Catholics, Protestants, Jews, Buddhists, Zoroastrians--you name it--are all welcome to join his League for Spiritual Discovery, provided they agree to take at least one LSD "trip" a week.

LSD, shorthand for D-lysergic acid diethylamide, is said to expand the consciousness. Users of the drug say they can not only see, but also hear and touch, incredibly vivid colors. Depending on the traveler's mental state, an LSD trip can induce deep ecstasy or equally profound despair.

Leary, the former Harvard professor who is the prophet of LSD, maintains that the League for Spiritual Discovery is a religious organization. He plans to file suit in a New York State court asking for a declaratory judgment supporting his contention. If he is successful, members of the league would be required to designate one room of their homes as a shrine. Taking of the sacrament --LSD--would be done there, and there only.

THE ALLIANCE of drugs and religion is nothing new. Two years ago, the California Supreme Court set aside the conviction under state narcotics laws of three Navajo Indians who had been arrested in 1962 for sipping peyote tea. The Indians were members of the Native American Church, which believes that ingestion of peyote--source of an LSD--like hallucinogenic drug--brings one into direct communion with God.

The Neo-American Church holds with Leary and the Navajos that taking of hallucinogens is a religious experience. Patriarchs and matriarchs of the Neo-American Church are called Boo Hoos. Art Kleps, the National Boo Hoo, told a startled Senate subcommittee last spring that if Leary went to jail on a federal narcotics conviction, there would be "holy war" in the United States.

BE THAT AS IT MAY, a California statue outlawing LSD becomes effective on Oct. 7. Under the law, unauthorized possession or knowing use of the drug is a misdemeanor punishable by $1,000 fine or one year in prison. Illegal manufacture or sale of LSD is a felony carrying a prison term of 1-5 years for a first offense and of 2-10 years for subsequent offenses.

The California law does not penalize research use of LSD. This comes as a relief to physicians and psychologists, who are only beginning to explore the lasting effects, if any, of the drug on human personality. Preliminary findings seem to indicate that LSD can produce slight but beneficial changes in the personalities of stable, well adjusted persons.

But these are the persons least likely to be attracted to the LSD cult. All too often it is the weak ego, the stunted personality, that seeks out drugs of whatever kind as an emotional crutch. In such cases, the effects of a mind-altering substance like LSD can be shattering.

It remains to be seen whether the California law will curb the use of LSD. Federal and state laws against opium and its byproducts have benefitted mainly the criminal syndicates engaged in narcotics smuggling. Already, it is reported, plans have been laid to smuggle LSD into California from Mexico. And any reasonably competent chemist can synthesize LSD in the laboratory.

NO RETAILING MONOPOLIES

Some years ago, there was a widespread fear that the big corporate chain store systems would destroy independent merchandising, particularly in the food field. And it may be that numbers of people still hold that notion.

If so, the facts should reassure them. The share of the market held by the three largest food chains, according to the president of one of them, has declined by 2 1/2 per centage points since 1929. And the fourth largest food chain is a cooperative, owned and run by independent merchants operating some 2800 stores.

In the spokesman's words the "... fact is often overlooked that it is the growth of affiliated independent grocers -- in cooperative and voluntary chains -- that has been the outstanding feature of post-War changes in food retailing. Their share has risen from 27 per cent to half of the grocery business, while the corporate chain's share has increased but slightly -- and has just held steady since 1960 at a level of about 40 per cent, or 44 per cent, depending on whose figures you use.'

In other words, those who foresaw the demise of the independent did him a grave injustice. He took a leaf from the corporate chains book and created the cooperative organizations which gave him mass purchasing power and the ability to compete on an even basis. There are no monopolies in retailing.

IN THE OFFING -- A STRONG TREND TO ELEGANCE IN FASHION

The history of men's fashions shows a recurrent series of cycles. Observers and historians have charted the movements -- and accurately predicted what lies ahead. Under even normal conditions, we would by now have been veering away from the casual and towards a more dress-up look. It appears that the trend will be hastened and heightened by the current "Carnaby" experience -- which, while it's been a powerful influence on the introduction of color and extremity, has run its course along those lines. The next step is to elegance and dignity, Albeit with lots of color -- to smart double-breasted suits and jackets, distinctly - striped fabrics, colored and fancy suit linings, to white collars and cuffs on colored shirts, matching and contrasting vests, elegant jewelry and everything else contributing to an over-all gentlemanly "look."

OPTIMUM SERVICE MINIMUM COST

The transportation committee of the National Cattlemen's Association unanimously passed this resolution during the organization's recent annual convention: "Recognizing that only through free competition can the public fully benefit from the lowering of transportation costs brought about through improved technology, we will strongly support legislation which will remove the present inequities in federal regulation of the various modes of transportation.

"Until such time as these inequities are removed we will vigorously oppose any contention before the Interstate Commerce Commission that a proposal to lower rates should be denied because it may adversely affect other carriers."

It is fitting that the cattlemen should pass a resolution of this sort-- they have always been staunch believers in the competitive free market system and have opposed government controls in good times and bad. And, while there are many differences between the situations in agriculture and in transportation, the principle can be applied to both. Certainly the man or the organization which can provide the best job at the most attractive price should be entitled to the business. In transportation, that premise is violated -- because of obsolete laws and rules laid down when the railroads held a near-monopoly status.

What is needed is a regulatory philosophy which, while preventing discriminations and inherent advantages in its competitive pursuit of customers. Then, and only then, will the nation be assured of optimum service at minimum cost.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - When Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko sits down to dinner with President Johnson tonight (Oct. 10) in their hands will be the question of peace in Southeast Asia or the risk of World War III.

They will not be sitting down as strangers; rather as two shrewd negotiators who came to Washington about the same time. It was when Lyndon Johnson was a young congressman from Texas that Andrei Gromyko came to work four blocks from the White House in the 16th Street mansion built by Mrs. George Pullman, widow of the Pullman car executive.

Gromyko, a young Soviet secretary, grew up in these Capitalist surroundings, featuring gold candelabra and red satin wall coverings; came to know the politics of the USA not as well as Johnson, but its foreign policies perhaps better.

He knew in the 1960 election, however, not to criticize Nixon or it might defeat Kennedy. I know because in October, 1960, I talked to Gromyko about it. He also knew in 1963-64 not to do anything that might rock the political boat for Lyndon Johnson and elect Goldwater. And he knows right now that Johnson is handicapped in making foreign policy moves until after the November elections.

MOSCOW RESCUED U.S.

The Russians, though they don't agree with American politics, understand politics and are practical people. Twice in the past they have rescued the United States or the West from embarrassing impasses. Once was in 1954 when Foreign Minister Molotov, Gromyko's predecessor, helped call the Geneva Conference to get France and indirectly the United States - which had been financing France - out of the Indo-China mess.

The second was in 1961-62, when Khrushchev deliberately helped President Kennedy pull his chestnuts out of the fire in Laos where we had become overextended and hopelessly bogged down.

So the big question is: Will Gromyko help bail us out of Viet Nam, where we have 317,000 troops involved in a war that may last eight to ten years, which is undermining the Johnson administration, causing serious inflation and alienating our friends in Asia and our allies in Europe?

On the surface this is a situation which should make Gromyko and his chiefs in the Kremlin rub their hands with glee. But political recrimination isn't as important in this case as the bitter gulf developing between Russia and Red China and the Russian desire for peace.

They know that the USA and USSR today can control the peace of the world, and in December, 1961, Gromyko reported to the 22nd Communist Party Congress that Secretary of State Rusk had told him the United States and Russia must work together to this end. Gromyko added that he was convinced Rusk was sincere and he, Gromyko, believed there was a real chance to better Soviet-American relations.

JOHNSON AND ERHARD

Today, the Russians are irked and unhappy about the Viet Nam War. Nevertheless they are practical. And when the same Secretary Rusk had dinner in New York two weeks ago with the same Foreign Minister Gromyko, they had an interesting interchange over peace Corpsman Thomas Dawson and nuclear weapons for Germany.

Rusk wanted Dawson released. Gromyko made no promises - though later releasing him - and went on to discuss Soviet fear of West Germany's military revival, especially the German bid for more control over nuclear weapons. He knew, of course, that Chancellor Erhard was soon coming to Washington.

President Johnson got the message. And though he and Erhard are old friends and he was fully aware of the political problems Erhard faces at home, Johnson did not budge from our ban on letting Germany have any control over nuclear weapons.

It would be an oversimplification to say that this was the only factor motivating Johnson's decision. But the importance of getting Soviet cooperation for peace in Viet Nam was most important.

About a month earlier, the president had followed up his Aug. 26 Idaho speech urging better USA-USSR relations by calling in his advisers and asking what steps could be taken to this end. They recommended completion of the long-delayed air agreement for direct flights between New York and Moscow.

This has now been done.

But the real objective is to get Russian help in bringing North Viet Nam to the peace table. The Russians have the power to do this. They are the chief source of Hanoi's planes, anti-aircraft guns and munitions.

And Gromyko has the authority to do this. He is no longer a messenger boy, as under Khrushchev. He carries weight in the Kremlin. He knew that the United States has put forward more sweeping peace proposals than ever before, and that the president has subjected himself to Republican criticism in so doing. He also has read of Eisenhower's implied advice to use the Atom bomb to finish the war.

So a lot hangs on the dinner tonight between the man who was trained on 16th Street, four blocks from the White House, and the man who now occupies the White House. On it may hang the peace of the world.

NEW ENVOY TO MOSCOW

Thompson previously served five years in Moscow as ambassador, at which time he was one of the few Americans in whom Nikita Khrushchev confided. On occasion Thompson spent weekends at Khrushchev's dacha.

Thompson was also one of only two foreign service officers who did not resign to take advantage of a retirement bonus. Instead he remained on at some financial sacrifice to himself.

During the past five years, Thompson has served as ambassador at large for the State Department and the chief adviser on relations with the communist countries.

Thompson began studying the Russian language when he was a young career officer and has been called upon to sit in on some of the important sessions between Khrushchev and American leaders. He served in this capacity for President Kennedy during the meeting with Khrushchev in Vienna.

ALPACA IN ASIA

Wherever people have an independent choice of governing themselves or submitting to tyranny, they choose freedom.

The most recent example is South Vietnam, where South Vietnamese voted overwhelmingly for members of a Constitutional Assembly to prepare a Constitution for their country, literally risking their lives in going to vote.

Another example is the Philippines, with 32 million people inhabiting 7,000 islands of the Philippine archipelago. Granted independence July 4, 1946, after 48 years as a U.S. possession, Filipinos chose a republican form of government founded on democratic principles. Not unexpectedly communists immediately tried undermining Filipino freedom and in 1951 came perilously close to doing so.

Ten months ago pro-freedom President Ferdinand Marcos, the Philippines' most decorated World War II hero and staunch friend of the U.S., won a resounding election victory. Summing up, he said in effect the only way to win a war against Communism is "total war against the communists and total friendship to the people, who may be misled. . ."

President Marcos recently announced the rescheduling to October 28 of a meeting of heads of countries of Eastern Asia was to permit launching of a communications satellite to handle worldwide coverage of the event.

The popularized ALPACA Constitution will be translated into various languages in use by Asiatics, and since the literate peoples of these nations will likely be the ones who will lead, such translation will afford them the opportunity for fresh thought, study and analysis of forms of government.

ALPACA can be totally disregarded but cannot be received apathetically. If every provision in the ALPACA Constitution is wrong, it can cause its appraisers to decide some other provisions would be right while trying to cure their nation's ills and they might be right. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Union Official Shows How to Bank $300,000 A Year On a $182-a-Week Salary.

Washington, D. C.: -- Some of the boys on the shady side of the street call Jack McCarthy the "abbot" of Westminister Consultants, Ltd. They reckon he deserves the august title for sheer awesome talent shown in the ability to bank over $300,000 in one year on an annual union busness manager's mini-salary of $9,500.

Abbot or not Mr. McCarthy may have escaped your notice the other day when he slid on and off the witness chair which Sen. McClellan ritually and with gallant forlorness regularly supplies the rogues of the labor world.

Now McCarthy and his band are for the moment unhampered citizens -- only slightly inconvenienced by the knowledge that the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the Labor Dept.'s special compliance division are probing them.

The federals want to know just how the "abbot" and his ancillaries used the locals of five major international unions to make hundreds of thousands of dollars. Sen. McClellan, too, was curious during his recent three - day hearing. But all he got were 10 new members -- most of them interwoven with the big unions -- of his "fifth amendment club."

Apparently, despite the "abbot's" control of a network of unions, consultant firms, real estate operations and special "services," the only forces not interested are the national union leaders. They have been silent.

They have not contacted Sen. McClellan. They have not asked for transcripts of the hearings. They have not moved against McCarthy's men, some of whom still have connections with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the International Jewelry Workers, the International Union of Electrical Workers and the Hotel and Restaurant Workers.

All of these unions do find time, however, to release vast floods of mimeographed appeals for ethical practices by universal mankind.

Lest we forget what was said -- and not reported -- in the hearing room, it must be recorded that the McCarthy operation involved 122 firms. They were the clients of either his Westminister Consultants, Ltd. or his National Consultants Associated, Ltd.

Somewhere in this tangle of unions and pressurized firms is the story of one Fred Ferrara, alias Gladstone. He is president of a local of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers. He was a partner with a chap called Maake in a cleaning firm -- window washing and waxing, etc. Ferrara was subpoenaed, but found he had to go into the hospital.

McClellan wanted to ask him about helping to set up the Amalgamated Dental Plan -- which was supported by some $300,000 from union welfare funds.

"About all the dental outfit provided was free cleaning of teeth for members," said one of the probers. "And, oh yes, a list of dentists to whom you could go if your tooth ached."

For some quixotic reason, the Dental Plan employed five bookies -- two took the fifth, two are dead and one soon will be hearing from the New York District Attorney Frank Hogan and the U. S. Attorney.

McCarthy has a partner-buddy, Danny Kapilow, once runner - up for the welterweight championship. This stood him in right good because "Danny-boy" bodyguarded a now aging tough in the window washing business. Believe it, there's millions in cleaning all that Manhattan glass.

Kapilow and McCarthy set up a trading company -- and it all got mixed up with four unions controlled by Mr. K.

Kapilow just loves the labor movement. He still is business manager of an International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' local.

Here then is the pattern which can be fitted into the labor relations of a hundred cities. Local labor officials are middle men -- fixers -- working for both sides.

Employers are pressured to "purchase labor peace" by such devices as placing advertising at high cost in so-called labor journals.

Or, business firms having to use the services of cleaning and waxing companies, owned and operated by McCarthy's relatives and in which he had financial interest.

Or, high interest rates going to "friendly" union officials. Or, the loan of welfare fund money to friendly firms. Or the purchase by McCarthy and Kapilow of a building while both were trustees of a union fund (put in the name of McCarthy's mother). The building was used to house the union and welfare fund headquarters.

Yet there has been no national union movement against this network of multiple charters and personal businesses.

Silence may sound safe. But it can betray.

And Sen. Javits, a probing committee member, tells me that "in my view it is absolutely essential that the parent organizations involved -- the international unions -- assume responsibility for correcting the situation... when racketeering influences take over."

Silence may be golden. But that's a very shaky standard these days.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

NEWSPAPERS -- LIGHTS OF LIBERTY

Editor and Publisher Year Book reports that as of Sept. 30, 1964, the 1,763 daily newspapers in the United States had a combined circulation of 60,412,266.

This is the highest circulation in history and a 2.5 per cent increase over 1963.

Sunday papers numbered 561 with a circulation of 48,383,076. This is also a gain over 1963, up by 11 papers and a million and a half circulation.

All of which information is apropos of observing that the week of October 9-15 is National Newspaper Week.

These figures add up to a lot of newspapers. There can never be too many of them in a free land, however, for the quality of freedom depends in great measure on the news reporting, news analysis and news editorializing performed by an unfettered and competitive press.

The figures add up to a lot of readers, too, especially when we add some 8,000 weeklies with a circulation of more than 24 million. The circulation numbers overlap, of course; they include people who subscribe to more than one paper.

On the other hand, they do not include millions of others who are not counted in the paid circulation but who see and read and are otherwise exposed to newspapers.

It is safe to say that the individual in America today who does not read at least some part of some newspaper regularly is a pretty rare bird indeed.

Whenever any newspaper, large or small, goes out of business or is shut down by a strike, it is as if a light were turned off in the community it served.

No other communications medium fills so many and so varied needs of modern life - from want ads to advice columns, from society notes to vital statistics, from comics to sermons.

But all of these are secondary to a newspaper's reason for existence - of being a NEWSpaper. Yet in this day of almost instantaneous electronic dissemination of major news events, even this category has undergone fundamental change.

People look to their newspaper not just for headlines or spot news but the news behind the news. They want background, explanation, analysis to help them relate today's complex news to yesterday's and to enable them to understand tomorrow's news when it happens.

A newspaper is a light in its community and in its country. That is why totalitarian governments, which prosper in human darkness, must gag them. That is why freedom of the press was the first right to be catalogued in the Bill of Rights of the Constitution.

America has many such lights. Happily, the number is growing, despite the deaths of some and the merger of others. Each one of them contributes to the brilliance of the larger light of liberty.

LEARY'S SACRAMENTAL DRUG

MYSTICS, Dr. Timothy Leary says, "have always been ecumenical." Leary means that Catholics, Protestants, Jews, Buddhists, Zoroastrians--you name it--are all welcome to join his League for Spiritual Discovery, provided they agree to take at least one LSD "trip" a week.

LSD, shorthand for D-lysergic acid diethylamide, is said to expand the consciousness. Users of the drug say they can not only see, but also hear and touch, incredibly vivid colors. Depending on the traveler's mental state, an LSD trip can induce deep ecstasy or equally profound despair.

Leary, the former Harvard professor who is the prophet of LSD, maintains that the League for Spiritual Discovery is a religious organization. He plans to file suit in a New York State court asking for a declaratory judgment supporting his contention. If he is successful, members of the league would be required to designate one room of their homes as a shrine. Taking of the sacrament --LSD--would be done there, and there only.

THE ALLIANCE of drugs and religion is nothing new. Two years ago, the California Supreme Court set aside the conviction under state narcotics laws of three Navajo Indians who had been arrested in 1962 for sipping peyote tea. The Indians were members of the Native American Church, which believes that ingestion of peyote--source of an LSD--like hallucinogenic drug--brings one into direct communion with God.

The Neo-American Church holds with Leary and the Navajos that taking of hallucinogens is a religious experience. Patriarchs and matriarchs of the Neo-American Church are called Boo Hoos. Art Kleps, the National Boo Hoo, told a startled Senate subcommittee last spring that if Leary went to jail on a federal narcotics conviction, there would be "holy war" in the United States.

BE THAT AS IT MAY, a California statue outlawing LSD becomes effective on Oct. 7. Under the law, unauthorized possession or knowing use of the drug is a misdemeanor punishable by $1,000 fine or one year in prison. Illegal manufacture or sale of LSD is a felony carrying a prison term of 1-5 years for a first offense and of 2-10 years for subsequent offenses.

The California law does not penalize research use of LSD. This comes as a relief to physicians and psychologists, who are only beginning to explore the lasting effects, if any, of the drug on human personality. Preliminary findings seem to indicate that LSD can produce slight but beneficial changes in the personalities of stable, well adjusted persons.

But these are the persons least likely to be attracted to the LSD cult. All too often it is the weak ego, the stunted personality, that seeks out drugs of whatever kind as an emotional crutch. In such cases, the effects of a mind-altering substance like LSD can be shattering.

It remains to be seen whether the California law will curb the use of LSD. Federal and state laws against opium and its byproducts have benefitted mainly the criminal syndicates engaged in narcotics smuggling. Already, it is reported, plans have been laid to smuggle LSD into California from Mexico. And any reasonably competent chemist can synthesize LSD in the laboratory.

NO RETAILING MONOPOLIES

Some years ago, there was a widespread fear that the big corporate chain store systems would destroy independent merchandising, particularly in the food field. And it may be that numbers of people still hold that notion.

If so, the facts should reassure them. The share of the market held by the three largest food chains, according to the president of one of them, has declined by 2 1/2 per centage points since 1929. And the fourth largest food chain is a cooperative, owned and run by independent merchants operating some 2800 stores.

In the spokesman's words the "....fact is often overlooked that it is the growth of affiliated independent grocers -- in cooperative and voluntary chains -- that has been the outstanding feature of post-War changes in food retailing. Their share has risen from 27 per cent to half of the grocery business, while the corporate chain's share has increased but slightly -- and has just held steady since 1960 at a level of about 40 per cent, or 44 per cent, depending on whose figures you use.'

In other words, those who foresaw the demise of the independent did him a grave injustice. He took a leaf from the corporate chains book and created the cooperative organizations which gave him mass purchasing power and the ability to compete on an even basis. There are no monopolies in retailing.

IN THE OFFING -- A STRONG TREND TO ELEGANCE IN FASHION

The history of men's fashions shows a recurrent series of cycles. Observers and historians have charted the movements -- and accurately predicted what lies ahead. Under even normal conditions, we would by now have been veering away from the casual and towards a more dress-up look. It appears that the trend will be hastened and heightened by the current "Carnaby" experience -- which, while it's been a powerful influence on the introduction of color and extremity, has run its course along those lines. The next step is to elegance and dignity, Albeit with lots of color -- to smart double-breasted suits and jackets, distinctly - striped fabrics, colored and fancy suit linings, to white collars and cuffs on colored shirts, matching and contrasting vests, elegant jewelry and everything else contributing to an over-all gentlemanly "look."

OPTIMUM SERVICE MINIMUM COST

The transportation committee of the National Cattlemen's Association unanimously passed this resolution during the organization's recent annual convention: "Recognizing that only through free competition can the public fully benefit from the lowering of transportation costs brought about through improved technology, we will strongly support legislation which will remove the present inequities in federal regulation of the various modes of transportation.

"Until such time as these inequities are removed we will vigorously oppose any contention before the Interstate Commerce Commission that a proposal to lower rates should be denied because it may adversely affect other carriers."

It is fitting that the cattlemen should pass a resolution of this sort-- they have always been staunch believers in the competitive free market system and have opposed government controls in good times and bad. And, while there are many differences between the situations in agriculture and in transportation, the principle can be applied to both. Certainly the man or the organization which can provide the best job at the most attractive price should be entitled to the business. In transportation, that premise is violated -- because of obsolete laws and rules laid down when the railroads held a near-monopoly status.

What is needed is a regulatory philosophy which, while preventing discriminations and inherent advantages in its competitive pursuit of customers. Then, and only then, will the nation be assured of optimum service at minimum cost.

There's a small town I know of with a population that remains exactly the same from year to year. It seems that every time a baby is born, a guy leaves town.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - When Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko sits down to dinner with President Johnson tonight (Oct. 10) in their hands will be the question of peace in Southeast Asia or the risk of World War III.

They will not be sitting down as strangers; rather as two shrewd negotiators who came to Washington about the same time. It was when Lyndon Johnson was a young congressman from Texas that Andrei Gromyko came to work four blocks from the White House in the 16th Street mansion built by Mrs. George Pullman, widow of the Pullman car executive.

Gromyko, a young Soviet secretary, grew up in these Capitalist surroundings, featuring gold candelabra and red satin wall coverings; came to know the politics of the USA not as well as Johnson, but its foreign policies perhaps better.

He knew in the 1960 election, however, not to criticize Nixon or it might defeat Kennedy. I know because in October, 1960, I talked to Gromyko about it. He also knew in 1963-64 not to do anything that might rock the political boat for Lyndon Johnson and elect Goldwater. And he knows right now that Johnson is handicapped in making foreign policy moves until after the November elections.

MOSCOW RESCUED U.S.

The Russians, though they don't agree with American politics, understand politics and are practical people. Twice in the past they have rescued the United States or the West from embarrassing impasses. Once was in 1954 when Foreign Minister Molotov, Gromyko's predecessor, helped call the Geneva Conference to get France and indirectly the United States - which had been financing France - out of the Indo-China mess.

The second was in 1961-62, when Khrushchev deliberately helped President Kennedy pull his chestnuts out of the fire in Laos where we had become overextended and hopelessly bogged down.

So the big question is: Will Gromyko help bail us out of Viet Nam, where we have 317,000 troops involved in a war that may last eight to ten years, which is undermining the Johnson administration, causing serious inflation and alienating our friends in Asia and our allies in Europe?

On the surface this is a situation which should make Gromyko and his chiefs in the Kremlin rub their hands with glee. But political recrimination isn't as important in this case as the bitter gulf developing between Russia and Red China and the Russian desire for peace.

They know that the USA and USSR today can control the peace of the world, and in December, 1961, Gromyko reported to the 22nd Communist Party Congress that Secretary of State Rusk had told him the United States and Russia must work together to this end. Gromyko added that he was convinced Rusk was sincere and he, Gromyko, believed there was a real chance to better Soviet-American relations.

JOHNSON AND ERHARD

Today, the Russians are irked and unhappy about the Viet Nam War. Nevertheless they are practical. And when the same Secretary Rusk had dinner in New York two weeks ago with the same Foreign Minister Gromyko, they had an interesting interchange over peace Corpsman Thomas Dawson and nuclear weapons for Germany.

Rusk wanted Dawson released. Gromyko made no promises - though later releasing him - and went on to discuss Soviet fear of West Germany's military revival, especially the German bid for more control over nuclear weapons. He knew, of course, that Chancellor Erhard was soon coming to Washington.

President Johnson got the message. And though he and Erhard are old friends and he was fully aware of the political problems Erhard faces at home, Johnson did not budge from our ban on letting Germany have any control over nuclear weapons.

It would be an oversimplification to say that this was the only factor motivating Johnson's decision. But the importance of getting Soviet cooperation for peace in Viet Nam was most important.

About a month earlier, the president had followed up his Aug. 26 Idaho speech urging better USA-USSR relations by calling in his advisers and asking what steps could be taken to this end. They recommended completion of the long-delayed air agreement for direct flights between New York and Moscow.

This has now been done.

But the real objective is to get Russian help in bringing North Viet Nam to the peace table. The Russians have the power to do this. They are the chief source of Hanoi's planes, anti-aircraft guns and munitions.

And Gromyko has the authority to do this. He is no longer a messenger boy, as under Khrushchev. He carries weight in the Kremlin. He knew that the United States has put forward more sweeping peace proposals than ever before, and that the president has subjected himself to Republican criticism in so doing. He also has read of Eisenhower's implied advice to use the Atom bomb to finish the war.

So a lot hangs on the dinner tonight between the man who was trained on 16th Street, four blocks from the White House, and the man who now occupies the White House. On it may hang the peace of the world.

NEW ENVOY TO MOSCOW

Thompson previously served five years in Moscow as ambassador, at which time he was one of the few Americans in whom Nikita Khrushchev confided. On occasion Thompson spent weekends at Khrushchev's dacha.

Thompson was also one of only two foreign service officers who did not resign to take advantage of a retirement bonus. Instead he remained on at some financial sacrifice to himself.

During the past five years, Thompson has served as ambassador at large for the State Department and the chief adviser on relations with the communist countries.

Thompson began studying the Russian language when he was a young career officer and has been called upon to sit in on some of the important sessions between Khrushchev and American leaders. He served in this capacity for President Kennedy during the meeting with Khrushchev in Vienna.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Union Official Shows How to Bank $300,000 A Year On a $182-a-Week Salary.

Washington, D. C.: -- Some of the boys on the shady side of the street call Jack McCarthy the "abbot" of Westminister Consultants, Ltd. They reckon he deserves the august title for sheer awesome talent shown in the ability to bank over $300,000 in one year on an annual union busness manager's minisalary of $9,500.

Abbot or not Mr. McCarthy may have escaped your notice the other day when he slid on and off the witness chair which Sen. McClellan ritually and with gallant forlorness regularly supplies the rogues of the labor world.

Now McCarthy and his band are for the moment unhampered citizens -- only slightly inconvenienced by the knowledge that the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the Labor Dept.'s special compliance division are probing them.

The federals want to know just how the "abbot" and his ancillaries used the locals of five major international unions to make hundreds of thousands of dollars. Sen. McClellan, too, was curious during his recent three - day hearing. But all he got were 10 new members -- most of them interwoven with the big unions -- of his "fifth amendment club."

Apparently, despite the "abbot's" control of a network of unions, consultant firms, real estate operations and special "services," the only forces not interested are the national union leaders. They have been silent.

They have not contacted Sen. McClellan. They have not asked for transcripts of the hearings. They have not moved against McCarthy's men, some of whom still have connections with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the International Jewelry Workers, the International Union of Electrical Workers and the Hotel and Restaurant Workers.

All of these unions do find time, however, to release vast floods of mimeographed appeals for ethical practices by universal mankind.

Lest we forget what was said -- and not reported -- in the hearing room, it must be recorded that the McCarthy operation involved 122 firms. They were the clients of either his Westminister Consultants, Ltd. or his National Consultants Associated, Ltd.

Somewhere in this tangle of unions and pressurized firms is the story of one Fred Ferrara, alias Gladstone. He is president of a local of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers. He was a partner with a chap called Maake in a cleaning firm -- window washing and waxing, etc. Ferrara was subpoenaed, but found he had to go into the hospital.

McClellan wanted to ask him about helping to set up the Amalgamated Dental Plan -- which was supported by some $300,000 from union welfare funds.

"About all the dental outfit provided was free cleaning of teeth for members," said one of the probers. "And, oh yes, a list of dentists to whom you could go if your tooth ached."

For some quixotic reason, the Dental Plan employed five bookies -- two took the fifth, two are dead and one soon will be hearing from the New York District Attorney Frank Hogan and the U. S. Attorney.

McCarthy has a partner-buddy, Danny Kapilow, once runner - up for the welterweight championship. This stood him in right good because "Danny-boy" bodyguarded a now aging tough in the window washing business. Believe it, there's millions in cleaning all that Manhattan glass.

Kapilow and McCarthy set up a trading company -- and it all got mixed up with four unions controlled by Mr. K.

Kapilow just loves the labor movement. He still is business manager of an International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' local.

Here then is the pattern which can be fitted into the labor relations of a hundred cities. Local labor officials are middle men -- fixers -- working for both sides.

Employers are pressured to "purchase labor peace" by such devices as placing advertising at high cost in so-called labor journals.

Or, business firms having to use the services of cleaning and waxing companies, owned and operated by McCarthy's relatives and in which he had financial interest.

Or, high interest rates going to "friendly" union officials. Or, the loan of welfare fund money to friendly firms. Or the purchase by McCarthy and Kapilow of a building while both were trustees of a union fund (put in the name of McCarthy's mother). The building was used to house the union and welfare fund headquarters.

Yet there has been no national union movement against this network of multiple charters and personal businesses.

Silence may sound safe. But it can betray.

And Sen. Javits, a probing committee member, tells me that "in my view it is absolutely essential that the parent organizations involved -- the international unions -- assume responsibility for correcting the situation...when racketeering influences take over."

Silence may be golden. But that's a very shaky standard these days.

Mrs. Carl Martin Sewald

Rita Ann Mathis Says Vows With Carl Martin Sewald

Soft candlelight illuminated the nuptial setting August 20, in the First Baptist church, when Miss Rita Ann Mathis became the bride of Carl Martin Sewald.

Miss Mathis is the granddaughter of Mrs. Thomas N. Mathis Sr., and the late Mr. Mathis. Sewald is the son of Mrs. Eileen Sewald and the late Carl F. Sewald.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Hackney and the Rev. Earl Tharp, minister of the Red Star Baptist church in Cape Girardeau.

The couple pledged their vows before an altar illumed by a brass arched candelabra entwined with greenery and holding white cathedral tapers. Appointing each side were spiral candelabrum entwined with greenery. Placed immediately before the ministers was a white prieu dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the benediction. The communion table held an open Holy Bible which was appointed by glowing tapers on either side, and graced by an arrangement of white gladioli.

The pre-nuptial music was provided by Miss Shirley Altom at the organ. "Clair de Lune" by Debussy and "Liebestraum" by Liszt were the musical arrangements rendered by Miss Altom. She accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Louis Watkins as they sang a duet, "I love You Truly." Mrs. Watkins, sister of the groom, rendered a solo, "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee" by Gounod, and Watkins closed the nuptial ceremony with the "Lord's Prayer" by Malott.

To the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," the bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her father, Thomas N. Mathis II of Atlanta, Ga. The bride chose a floor-length gown of imported silk organza. The empress bodice featured a plain bateau neckline and brief sleeves. It was lavishly trimmed with French re-embroidered Alencon lace underlaid with English net. Motifs of this same lace was scattered about the pencil-slim skirt, and again on the queen's wateau train that floated from the neckline into a full chapel-length train.

Her headdress was a flowerlette cap with each petal outlined with seed pearls. The elbow-length veil of English illusion was bouffant and hand rolled. A white laced childhood Bible topped with a large white orchid completed her bridal attire. She carried the theme of something old and something new for she wore her grandmother's diamond engagement ring which was given to Mrs. Mathis on a similar occasion 50 years ago.

Mrs. James Overall of Cape Girardeau, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor. Her maid of honor was Miss Susan Adams, Valdosta, Ga., a close friend. Serving as bridesmaid was Miss Eileen B. Foley, Creve Coeur, college roommate of the bride. An intended bridesmaid, Miss Sally Anne Gehrig, St. Petersburg, Fla., cousin of the bride, was unable to attend.

The candlelighters were Miss Joyce Sue Mathis, St. Louis, cousin of the bride, and Thomas N. Mathis III, Atlanta, Ga., brother of the bride. The flower girl was little Miss Eileen-Gay Remley, Conroe, Texas, cousin of the groom. The ring bearer was Master Darin Watkins, Vanduser, nephew of the groom. Miss Peggy Ann Lee was keeper of the guest book.

The matron of honor, maid of honor, and bridesmaid were identically attired in delicate pink crepe gowns, which were fashioned with slender-fitting skirts and sleeveless white, chantilly lace bodices. The floor-length skirts were accented with flowing chantilly lace trains. Their headpieces were soft illusion netting veils secured with delicate-pink satin ribbon crowns. They carried cascade arrangements of white carnations accented with deep-rose trimmed petals, satin ribbon, and streamers tied in lovers' knots.

The ring bearer carried the bridal couple's rings on a white heart-shaped satin pillow trimmed in lace. The pillow was especially made for the bride by a friend, Mr. J. W. Marshall.

Attending Sewald as best man was James Wade Overall of Cape Girardeau, brother-in-law of the groom. Groomsmen were Ronald Nall, Poplar bluff; Don Vieth, Paducah, Ky., both college fraternity brothers of the groom; and Bud Masterson, Cape Girardeau, a close friend. Ushers were Melvin Remley, Conroe, Texas, uncle of the groom, and William Skaggs, Union, a childhood friend of the groom.

Mrs. Mathis chose for her granddaughter's wedding a light pink lace dress. She accented her costume with white accessories and wore a deep rose carnation corsage. Mrs. Hazel Mathis of St. Louis, mother of the bride, wore a floral voile dress for the occasion. Her corsage was also an arrangement of deep rose carnations.

Mrs. Sewald, mother of the groom, was attired in an ice blue silk dress complemented by an elegant blue hat. Her other accessories were white and her corsage was of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship room. Serving at the reception were Mrs. Ronald Lee, Mrs. Opal Briggs, Mrs. Hulet Yates, Mrs. Castor Alsup, and Mrs. Edith Walker, close friends of the bride.

The bride's table was covered with a white damask cloth centered with an arrangement of rose buds in shades of pink. A large crystal punch bowl appointed one end of the table and a large column wedding cake graced the other end. The cake was topped with the traditional miniature bride and groom. Tall glowing tapers in silver candle sticks and silver compotes holding nuts and mints accented the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewald left following the reception for a wedding trip into the Ozarks. For traveling the new Mrs. Sewald wore a yellow and white two-piece linen suit. She completed her attire with white accessories and the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live in Cape Girardeau where the bride will complete her senior year at Southeast Missouri State College. The groom is the minister of education and music at the Red Star Baptist church in Cape Girardeau.

Members of Job's Daughters Bethel No. 27 were special guests of the bride on this occasion. They sat together in a section trimmed with large white bows and lilly of the valley. The bride is a past-honored queen of Bethel No. 27.

Out-of town guests were Mrs. Gerald Dillingham, Mrs. Willis Pind, Mrs. Walter Matthews and Melody, Mrs. Emory Kembel, Mrs. Leon Compas, Kathy and Debbie, Miss Carolyn Garner, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Welter and family, Miss Judy Masterson, Mrs. Gerald Masterson, Diane and Gail, Miss Karen Caldwell, Mrs. Earl Tharp, Jane and Steve, Mr. and Mrs. L. Mrs. John O'Hara Marks 95th Birthday

Mrs. John O'Hara, 506 East Center St., is observing her 95th birthday today.

A reception in her honor was held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at her home.

Mrs. O'Hara is active and alert. She showed her loyalty to the Sikeston Bulldogs Friday night by attending the Sikeston-Poplar Bluff football game, which Poplar Bluff won 35-6.

She came to Sikeston 47 years ago with her husband, who was employed by the Frisco railroad. She is in her 32nd year of teaching the Ladies Sunday School class at Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian church.

Mrs. O'Hara began her day Sunday by teaching her class and attending church services.

She has two sons, A. E. O'Hara of Charleston and H. R. O'Hara of California; and two daughters, Mrs. Edna Shankle and Miss Electa O'Hara, five grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. O'Hara received floral arrangements from friends. The arrangements decorated the home for the reception.

Mrs. O'Hara was named "Outstanding Woman" in 1962 by the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

Rita Ann Mathis Says Vows With Carl Martin Sewald

Soft candlelight illuminated the nuptial setting August 20, in the First Baptist church, when Miss Rita Ann Mathis became the bride of Carl Martin Sewald.

Miss Mathis is the granddaughter of Mrs. Thomas N. Mathis Sr., and the late Mr. Mathis. Sewald is the son of Mrs. Eileen Sewald and the late Carl F. Sewald.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Hackney and the Rev. Earl Tharp, minister of the Red Star Baptist church in Cape Girardeau.

The couple pledged their vows before an altar illumed by a brass arched candelabra entwined with greenery and holding white cathedral tapers. Appointing each side were spiral candelabrum entwined with greenery. Placed immediately before the ministers was a white prieu dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the benediction. The communion table held an open Holy Bible which was appointed by glowing tapers on either side, and graced by an arrangement of white gladioli.

The pre-nuptial music was provided by Miss Shirley Altom at the organ. "Clair de Lune" by Debussy and "Liebestraum" by Liszt were the musical arrangements rendered by Miss Altom. She accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Louis Watkins as they sang a duet, "I love You Truly." Mrs. Watkins, sister of the groom, rendered a solo, "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee" by Gounod, and Watkins closed the nuptial ceremony with the "Lord's Prayer" by Malott.

To the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," the bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her father, Thomas N. Mathis II of Atlanta, Ga. The bride chose a floor-length gown of imported silk organza. The empress bodice featured a plain bateau neckline and brief sleeves. It was lavishly trimmed with French re-embroidered Alencon lace underlaid with English net. Motifs of this same lace was scattered about the pencil-slim skirt, and again on the queen's wateau train that floated from the neckline into a full chapel-length train.

Her headdress was a flowerlette cap with each petal outlined with seed pearls. The elbow-length veil of English illusion was bouffant and hand rolled. A white laced childhood Bible topped with a large white orchid completed her bridal attire. She carried the theme of something old and something new for she wore her grandmother's diamond engagement ring which was given to Mrs. Mathis on a similar occasion 50 years ago.

Mrs. James Overall of Cape Girardeau, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor. Her maid of honor was Miss Susan Adams, Valdosta, Ga., a close friend. Serving as bridesmaid was Miss Eileen B. Foley, Creve Coeur, college roommate of the bride. An intended bridesmaid, Miss Sally Anne Gehrig, St. Petersburg, Fla., cousin of the bride, was unable to attend.

The candlelighters were Miss Joyce Sue Mathis, St. Louis, cousin of the bride, and Thomas N. Mathis III, Atlanta, Ga., brother of the bride. The flower girl was little Miss Eileen-Gay Remley, Conroe, Texas, cousin of the groom. The ring bearer was Master Darin Watkins, Vanduser, nephew of the groom. Miss Peggy Ann Lee was keeper of the guest book.

The matron of honor, maid of honor, and bridesmaid were identically attired in delicate pink crepe gowns, which were fashioned with slender-fitting skirts and sleeveless white, chantilly lace bodices. The floor-length skirts were accented with flowing chantilly lace trains. Their headpieces were soft illusion netting veils secured with delicate-pink satin ribbon crowns. They carried cascade arrangements of white carnations accented with deep-rose trimmed petals, satin ribbon, and streamers tied in lovers' knots.

The ring bearer carried the bridal couple's rings on a white heart-shaped satin pillow trimmed in lace. The pillow was especially made for the bride by a friend, Mr. J. W. Marshall.

Attending Sewald as best man was James Wade Overall of Cape Girardeau, brother-in-law of the groom. Groomsmen were Ronald Nall, Poplar bluff; Don Vieth, Paducah, Ky., both college fraternity brothers of the groom; and Bud Masterson, Cape Girardeau, a close friend. Ushers were Melvin Remley, Conroe, Texas, uncle of the groom, and William Skaggs, Union, a childhood friend of the groom.

Mrs. Mathis chose for her granddaughter's wedding a light pink lace dress. She accented her costume with white accessories and wore a deep rose carnation corsage. Mrs. Hazel Mathis of St. Louis, mother of the bride, wore a floral voile dress for the occasion. Her corsage was also an arrangement of deep rose carnations.

Mrs. Sewald, mother of the groom, was attired in an ice blue silk dress complemented by an elegant blue hat. Her other accessories were white and her corsage was of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship room. Serving at the reception were Mrs. Ronald Lee, Mrs. Opal Briggs, Mrs. Hulet Yates, Mrs. Castor Alsup, and Mrs. Edith Walker, close friends of the bride.

The bride's table was covered with a white damask cloth centered with an arrangement of rose buds in shades of pink. A large crystal punch bowl appointed one end of the table and a large column wedding cake graced the other end. The cake was topped with the traditional miniature bride and groom. Tall glowing tapers in silver candle sticks and silver compotes holding nuts and mints accented the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewald left following the reception for a wedding trip into the Ozarks. For traveling the new Mrs. Sewald wore a yellow and white two-piece linen suit. She completed her attire with white accessories and the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live in Cape Girardeau where the bride will complete her senior year at Southeast Missouri State College. The groom is the minister of education and music at the Red Star Baptist church in Cape Girardeau.

Members of Job's Daughters Bethel No. 27 were special guests of the bride on this occasion. They sat together in a section trimmed with large white bows and lilly of the valley. The bride is a past-honored queen of Bethel No. 27.

Unless the people can understand their relationship to industrial progress, security, and financial success, they will take little interest in what happens to individual companies which make up the basic industries on which our nation depends for its economic progress and employment.

Mrs. John O'Hara Marks 95th Birthday

Mrs. John O'Hara, 506 East Center St., is observing her 95th birthday today.

A reception in her honor was held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at her home.

Mrs. O'Hara is active and alert. She showed her loyalty to the Sikeston Bulldogs Friday night by attending the Sikeston-Poplar Bluff football game, which Poplar Bluff won 35-6.

She came to Sikeston 47 years ago with her husband, who was employed by the Frisco railroad. She is in her 32nd year of teaching the Ladies Sunday School class at Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian church.

Mrs. O'Hara began her day Sunday by teaching her class and attending church services.

She has two sons, A. E. O'Hara of Charleston and H. R. O'Hara of California; and two daughters, Mrs. Edna Shankle and Miss Electa O'Hara, five grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. O'Hara received floral arrangements from friends. The arrangements decorated the home for the reception.

Mrs. O'Hara was named "Outstanding Woman" in 1962 by the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

F. Robinson Leads Orioles To 4th Series Win and 1st Title

BALTIMORE AP -- Sandy Koufax is rested and ready to work that fifth World Series game today. The only trouble is the Los Angeles Dodgers ran out of games Sunday afternoon.

Operating on the theory that one game wouldn't help much, especially if he had to use his talented left-handed ace with only two days rest, Manager Walter Alston chose to keep Sandy in the barn for the fifth game.

"Our problem is winning four," Alston said Sunday when asked if he had thought of moving up Koufax from his regular turn. "Who would I pitch Monday?"

Actually the Dodgers looked like a snake-bit ball club. When you can score only two runs in four games and set a record for futility by going 33 straight innings without a run, no kind of pitching rotation can save you.

A team with a .142 club batting average, an all-time low for a Series of any length, cannot blame anybody but itself.

The best second guess on this Series is on the experts who said the Dodgers had the pitching and Baltimore would have to make up for their raggedy pitching staff by bombing the ball.

The Orioles did a little bombing with a total of four home runs including two in the first game by the Robinson boys, Frank and Brooks. Paul Blair won the third game with his homer and Frank Robinson's second of the Series was all Dave McNally needed Sunday.

"Would you believe four straight?"

The sign belongs to the city of Baltimore and so does the World Series following the Orioles' amazing - and convincing - four - game sweep of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

But now a bigger question is being kicked around:

Did the Orioles, in holding the Dodgers scoreless for a record 33 consecutive innings while putting together the first American League sweep in 16 years, destroy the myth of National League superiority?

Strangely enough, Frank Robinson, the guy who did the most to destroy the National League representatives, thinks not.

"I believed that when I was in the National League," said Robinson, who supplied the only homer in Sunday's 1-0 Series finale. "I still think over-all the National League is stronger, but it's not so much different in the two leagues as you're led to believe."

Not many experts agreed before the Series. The myth of superiority had been built through three straight World Series triumphs by National League teams and a succession of All-Star Game victories, and the Dodgers were quickly installed as 8-5 favorites for the Series.

Then it happened. The names were Moe Drabowsky, Jim Palmer, Wally Bunker and Dave McNally—and they completely stifled the Dodgers, holding them scoreless from the third inning of the first game to the end of the Series.

Was it American League superiority?

The answer, as it came from the dressing rooms, depended on the point of view. Harry Brecheen, the Orioles' pitching coach, said it was Baltimore's pitching superiority. Maury Wills, the Dodgers captain, saw it more as Los Angeles' inadequacy at the plate.

"To me I gotta say it's good pitching," Brecheen explained. "We didn't hit and they didn't hit. It's gotta be real fine pitching. I think the kids were able to pitch against Koufax and Drysdale because it was a challenge that they were pitching against a superstar and a star."

"With all due respect to their pitching a lot of it had to do with the fact that we were lousy with the bat," said Wills. "We had a bad hitting Series. They had a good pitching series. It was a combination of both.

It was just that after McNally was lifted in the third inning of the opener. Drabowsky pitched a 2-3 innings of shutout relief in winning 5-2, Palmer won 6-0 while allowing only four hits, Bunker won 1-0 while allowing only six hits and then McNally came back Sunday and finished it off with another four-hitter.

The only run was supplied by Frank Robinson, who powered the first pitch to him by Don Drysdale in the fourth inning some 410 feet into the left field stands for a homer and the final revenge shot heard back in Cincinnati.

Robinson had been traded to the Orioles on Dec. 9 last winter and labeled with an old-man tag. And his only thought had been wiping it out.

"I've been playing this season since Dec. 9," he said after the game. "I wanted to have a good year -- it was the first thought on my mind. I wanted to show the people that I wasn't washed up."

The Dodgers' feeble hitting turned out to be the worst in the 63 years of the World Series. They hit only .142, compared to the previous low, .161 by the Philadelphia A's in the 1906 Series against the New York Giants.

And by not scoring a run for 33 innings, they cruised past the A's record in that department. The A's had been held scoreless for 28 innings back in 1905.

The Orioles, meanwhile, completed the first sweep by an American League team since the 1950 when the New York Yankees took four straight from the Philadelphia Phillies.

And they brought the city of Baltimore its first major league championship since the days of Ned Hanlon's old Orioles of the National League in 1894, 1895 and 1896.

Second Half Surge Gives Cards 24-19 Win Over NY Giants

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS AP - The St. Louis Cardinals might be hard on their fans, but they're tougher on their opponents.

When the Cardinals scored all their points in the last two quarters Sunday for a 24-19 National Football League victory over the New York Giants, it marked the fourth time in five games this season that they have come from behind in the last half.

While such heroics have provided the Cardinal faithful with some anxious moments, they also have given St. Louis a 5-0 record, best in the easter division.

Coach Charley Winner is at a loss to explain it.

"You tell me," he said, "Maybe we'll change something. But I'd rather have a bad first half and a good second one than two bad ones."

The Cardinals' good half almost wasn't enough against the Giants, who led 13-0 at halftime and 19-14 with about four minutes to play. Then Jerry Stovall intercepted an Earl Morrall pass and turned the ball over to the Cardinal offense at the Giant 46.

St. Louis moved to the 24, but a penalty and a loss gave them a fourth down at the Giant 30. Charley Johnson was rushed out of his pocket, but fired to a wide open Billy Gambrell, who dashed pell-mell into the end zone with the winning points with 3:12 to play, although Jim Bakken added a 36-yard field goal to the Cardinal total in the last minute.

Two plans before the touchdown pass, Gambrell had dropped an aerial that would have meant a first down or possibly a touchdown.

"I held the second pass until I could read Pete Rozzell's name on the ball and then I ran," Gambrell said.

"We were fortunate, very fortunate," Winner said. I personally feel we weren't as ready mentally as we oughta been. New York played well enough to win, and the oddsmakers said were 22 points better. I knew all week long that they had a better club than that. They kept fighting."

The Giants dominated the first half, scoring on Morrall's nine-yard pass to Homer Jones and on field goals of 32 and 37 yards by Pete Gogolak, who also kicked two 47-yard field goals in the second half. St. Louis ran only five offensive series before halftime, giving up the ball twice on interceptions.

But rookie running back Johnny Roland got the Cardinals back in the game, plunging two yards for a touchdown to climax a 69-yard drive with the second half kickoff and throwing 40 yards to Bobby Joe Conrad for a touchdown in the last quarter.

The halfback pass was a new wrinkle in the St. Louis attack.

"We've had the pass for some time, but we hadn't used it," Winner said. "This happened to be just the right situation and it worked."

"I saw Bobby Joe and thought if I could get it down there he could get under it," Roland said. "I just heaved it and he was there."

Gambrell said the Cardinals were not flat the first half because they were looking ahead to next week's meeting in St. Louis with the undefeated Dallas Cowboys, who are 4-0 in the eastern division.

"We started thinking about them as soon as the game was over," Gambrell said.

Mizzou Wins But Suffers Big Loss

Bill Bates kicked 30 and 46-yard field goals for Missouri, the second into the wind, after little Ray Thorpe started things with a 67-yard TD on a sweep. End Dan Schuppan and tackle Bill Powell made some big defensive plays, but mammoth end Russ Washington hurt his knee and may be out three or four weeks.

Thorpe is a 5-foot-8, 179-pound senior who replaced injured Earl Denny. Missouri ran its line unbalanced right the first 11 minutes, and switched to unbalanced left for the first time on Thorpe's 67-yarder. Guard Alan Pepper and full-back Mike Ewing, a defensive back until last week, made the best blocks for Thorpe.

The power sweep has been Missouri's big play for nine years under Devine. Tiger opponents call it Student Body right, or left. Usually two guards and three backs lead the way. It's never any mystery, it's just that the Tigers execute it so well, explained K-State Coach Doug Weaver, a former Missouri assistant several years ago.

K-State fullback Cornelius Davis, the league's top ground gainer and No. 3 nationally, gained 91 yards in 20 carries and caught two passes for 49 more. Missouri's Charlie Brown had 73 in 15 trips, his best day this fall.

Kansas coach Jack Mitchell said fumbles and interceptions had nothing to do with it," Iowa State just came to play.

"I think we learned you can't enjoy a victory more than one Sunday afteroon. These are sophomores and they have to go through it to learn. I told 'em all week this could happen."

Quarterback Bob Skahan hit only 4 of 13 passes for 50 yards and had two steals returned 123. He put it this way:

"I just had a bad day. I think all of us had a bad day."

SEMO State Handed 17-14 Loss By Martin

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The University of Tennessee, Martin branch, handed Southeast Missouri State college its second home defeat in two weeks Saturday night at Houck field, 17-14. A large crowd sat in the drizzling rain and watched the home town eleven go down to defeat.

A 51-yard field goal was Martin's winning margin, that blow coming in the first period with 2:30 minutes left in the period. Lee Mayo booted the score.

Martin's Larry Shanks opened the scoring in the game with 4:42 left in the first period on a three-yard run. Mayo converted for a 7-0 lead.

A drive that started on the Indians 47-yard line and ended [illegible] a nine yard TD run by Bob H[illegible]s. Mayo kicked the extra point and took a 17-7 lead in the game with 7:58 in the third period after holding a 10-7 first half edge.

FOOTBALL FATALITY

JACKSON, Miss. AP A high school football player died Sunday night in a hospital of injuries suffered in a game 15 days earlier.

The victim was David Mills Jr., 16, who was an end for a school that opened this year, Jackson Wingield.

Mills suffered a broken neck in a game against another new school, Gulfport East, played in Jackson Sept. 23.

Razorbacks Suffer Loss, UCLA Has Its Troubles

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baylor, Georgia and Florida, disguised as also rans, have ended the masquerade and turned the college football party in the South into a real swinger.

Baylor started the festivities last Saturday, rearranging the Southwest Conference race into a free-for-all by upending mighty Arkansas 7-0 to shake up the Razorbacks' bid for a third straight title.

Unbeaten Georgia and Florida, each 2-0 in league play, turned the Southeastern Conference into a hot affair as the Bulldogs nudged Mississippi 9-3 and the Gators slipped by Florida State 22-19.

But No. 3 ranked Alabama, the favorite, still lurks in the background after crushing Clemson 26-0 in a non-conference game.

Baylor unveiled its Cotton Bowl dreams when Terry Southall connected on a touchdown pass in the final minutes to hand Arkansas, ranked No. 5, its first season loss in 25 games.

The Bears, ranked among the Top Ten before losing to Colorado several weeks ago, rest their 1-0 league record next Saturday, but co-leaders Texas and Texas A&M can expect no waltz.

Texas, losing to revitalized Oklahoma 18-9 for the first time in nine tries when Mike Vashon kicked four field goals, must meet Arkansas on the rebound and A&M has to stop Texas Christian, a 6-3 winner over Texas Tech on Bruce Alford's two field goals.

Up North, Michigan State, No. 1, continued its two-step to the Big Ten championship. The Spartans can't go to the Rose Bowl, but they are having plenty to say about who will get the nod.

State called the tune against title hopeful Michigan 20-7 as Jimmy Raye threw for one score and ran for another in the cross - state win. The Spartans get their chance against another contender, Purdue, in two weeks.

The Boilermakers, who clash with Michigan Saturday, moved into the favorite roll by cruising past Iowa 35-0 as Bob Griese clicked for 215 yards and one touchdown through the air.

Elsewhere, Southern California, staggering under the loss of injured quarterback Tory Winslow in the first period, finally quarter touchdown to beat Washington, 17-14 and remain a ington, 17-14 and remain a co-favorite with UCLA in the Pacific Fight.

The Uclans also had their troubles. Lulled by Rice for three quarters, the nation's second-ranked team awoke in the final period. Gary Began, who had run for two touchdowns, hit Harold Busby for a 33-yard touchdown and Kurt Zimmerman kicked a 17-yard field goal with seven seconds left to beat the Owls 27-24.

Southern Cal, ranked sixth, plays Stanford Saturday while UCLA remains out of the conference against Penn State.

F. Robinson Leads Orioles To 4th Series Win and 1st Title

BALTIMORE AP -- Sandy Koufax is rested and ready to work that fifth World Series game today. The only trouble is the Los Angeles Dodgers ran out of games Sunday afternoon.

Operating on the theory that one game wouldn't help much, especially if he had to use his talented left-handed ace with only two days rest, Manager Walter Alston chose to keep Sandy in the barn for the fifth game.

"Our problem is winning four," Alston said Sunday when asked if he had thought of moving up Koufax from his regular turn. "Who would I pitch Monday?"

Actually the Dodgers looked like a snake-bit ball club. When you can score only two runs in four games and set a record for futility by going 33 straight innings without a run, no kind of pitching rotation can save you.

A team with a .142 club batting average, an all-time low for a Series of any length, cannot blame anybody but itself.

The best second guess on this Series is on the experts who said the Dodgers had the pitching and Baltimore would have to make up for their raggedy pitching staff by bombing the ball.

The Orioles did a little bombing with a total of four home runs including two in the first game by the Robinson boys, Frank and Brooks. Paul Blair won the third game with his homer and Frank Robinson's second of the Series was all Dave McNally needed Sunday.

"Would you believe four straight?"

The sign belongs to the city of Baltimore and so does the World Series following the Orioles' amazing - and convincing - four - game sweep of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

But now a bigger question is being kicked around:

Did the Orioles, in holding the Dodgers scoreless for a record 33 consecutive innings while putting together the first American League sweep in 16 years, destroy the myth of National League superiority?

Strangely enough, Frank Robinson, the guy who did the most to destroy the National League representatives, thinks not.

"I believed that when I was in the National League," said Robinson, who supplied the only homer in Sunday's 1-0 Series finale. "I still think over-all the National League is stronger, but it's not so much different in the two leagues as you're led to believe."

Not many experts agreed before the Series. The myth of superiority had been built through three straight World Series triumphs by National League teams and a succession of All-Star Game victories, and the Dodgers were quickly installed as 8-5 favorites for the Series.

Then it happened. The names were Moe Drabowsky, Jim Palmer, Wally Bunker and Dave McNally—and they completely stifled the Dodgers, holding them scoreless from the third inning of the first game to the end of the Series.

Was it American League superiority?

The answer, as it came from the dressing rooms, depended on the point of view. Harry Brecheen, the Orioles' pitching coach, said it was Baltimore's pitching superiority. Maury Wills, the Dodgers captain, saw it more as Los Angeles' inadequacy at the plate.

"To me I gotta say it's good pitching," Brecheen explained. "We didn't hit and they didn't hit. It's gotta be real fine pitching. I think the kids were able to pitch against Koufax and Drysdale because it was a challenge that they were pitching against a superstar and a star."

"With all due respect to their pitching a lot of it had to do with the fact that we were lousy with the bat," said Wills. "We had a bad hitting Series. They had a good pitching series. It was a combination of both.

It was just that after McNally was lifted in the third inning of the opener. Drabowsky pitched a 2-3 innings of shutout relief in winning 5-2, Palmer won 6-0 while allowing only four hits, Bunker won 1-0 while allowing only six hits and then McNally came back Sunday and finished it off with another four-hitter.

The only run was supplied by Frank Robinson, who powered the first pitch to him by Don Drysdale in the fourth inning some 410 feet into the left field stands for a homer and the final revenge shot heard back in Cincinnati.

Robinson had been traded to the Orioles on Dec. 9 last winter and labeled with an old-man tag. And his only thought had been wiping it out.

"I've been playing this season since Dec. 9," he said after the game. "I wanted to have a good year -- it was the first thought on my mind. I wanted to show the people that I wasn't washed up."

The Dodgers' feeble hitting turned out to be the worst in the 63 years of the World Series. They hit only .142, compared to the previous low, .161 by the Philadelphia A's in the 1906 Series against the New York Giants.

And by not scoring a run for 33 innings, they cruised past the A's record in that department. The A's had been held scoreless for 28 innings back in 1905.

The Orioles, meanwhile, completed the first sweep by an American League team since the 1950 when the New York Yankees took four straight from the Philadelphia Phillies.

And they brought the city of Baltimore its first major league championship since the days of Ned Hanlon's old Orioles of the National League in 1894, 1895 and 1896.

Second Half Surge Gives Cards 24-19 Win Over NY Giants

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS AP - The St. Louis Cardinals might be hard on their fans, but they're tougher on their opponents.

When the Cardinals scored all their points in the last two quarters Sunday for a 24-19 National Football League victory over the New York Giants, it marked the fourth time in five games this season that they have come from behind in the last half.

While such heroics have provided the Cardinal faithful with some anxious moments, they also have given St. Louis a 5-0 record, best in the easter division.

Coach Charley Winner is at a loss to explain it.

"You tell me," he said, "Maybe we'll change something. But I'd rather have a bad first half and a good second one than two bad ones."

The Cardinals' good half almost wasn't enough against the Giants, who led 13-0 at halftime and 19-14 with about four minutes to play. Then Jerry Stovall intercepted an Earl Morrall pass and turned the ball over to the Cardinal offense at the Giant 46.

St. Louis moved to the 24, but a penalty and a loss gave them a fourth down at the Giant 30. Charley Johnson was rushed out of his pocket, but fired to a wide open Billy Gambrell, who dashed pell-mell into the end zone with the winning points with 3:12 to play, although Jim Bakken added a 36-yard field goal to the Cardinal total in the last minute.

Two plans before the touchdown pass, Gambrell had dropped an aerial that would have meant a first down or possibly a touchdown.

"I held the second pass until I could read Pete Rozzell's name on the ball and then I ran," Gambrell said.

"We were fortunate, very fortunate," Winner said. I personally feel we weren't as ready mentally as we oughta been. New York played well enough to win, and the oddsmakers said were 22 points better. I knew all week long that they had a better club than that. They kept fighting."

The Giants dominated the first half, scoring on Morrall's nine-yard pass to Homer Jones and on field goals of 32 and 37 yards by Pete Gogolak, who also kicked two 47-yard field goals in the second half. St. Louis ran only five offensive series before halftime, giving up the ball twice on interceptions.

But rookie running back Johnny Roland got the Cardinals back in the game, plunging two yards for a touchdown to climax a 69-yard drive with the second half kickoff and throwing 40 yards to Bobby Joe Conrad for a touchdown in the last quarter.

The halfback pass was a new wrinkle in the St. Louis attack.

"We've had the pass for some time, but we hadn't used it," Winner said. "This happened to be just the right situation and it worked."

"I saw Bobby Joe and thought if I could get it down there he could get under it," Roland said. "I just heaved it and he was there."

Gambrell said the Cardinals were not flat the first half because they were looking ahead to next week's meeting in St. Louis with the undefeated Dallas Cowboys, who are 4-0 in the eastern division.

"We started thinking about them as soon as the game was over," Gambrell said.

Mizzou Wins But Suffers Big Loss

Bill Bates kicked 30 and 46-yard field goals for Missouri, the second into the wind, after little Ray Thorpe started things with a 67-yard TD on a sweep. End Dan Schuppan and tackle Bill Powell made some big defensive plays, but mammoth end Russ Washington hurt his knee and may be out three or four weeks.

Thorpe is a 5-foot-8, 179-pound senior who replaced injured Earl Denny. Missouri ran its line unbalanced right the first 11 minutes, and switched to unbalanced left for the first time on Thorpe's 67-yarder. Guard Alan Pepper and full-back Mike Ewing, a defensive back until last week, made the best blocks for Thorpe.

The power sweep has been Missouri's big play for nine years under Devine. Tiger opponents call it Student Body right, or left. Usually two guards and three backs lead the way. It's never any mystery, it's just that the Tigers execute it so well, explained K-State Coach Doug Weaver, a former Missouri assistant several years ago.

K-State fullback Cornelius Davis, the league's top ground gainer and No. 3 nationally, gained 91 yards in 20 carries and caught two passes for 49 more. Missouri's Charlie Brown had 73 in 15 trips, his best day this fall.

Kansas coach Jack Mitchell said fumbles and interceptions had nothing to do with it," Iowa State just came to play.

"I think we learned you can't enjoy a victory more than one Sunday afteroon. These are sophomores and they have to go through it to learn. I told 'em all week this could happen."

Quarterback Bob Skahan hit only 4 of 13 passes for 50 yards and had two steals returned 123. He put it this way:

"I just had a bad day. I think all of us had a bad day."

SEMO State Handed 17-14 Loss By Martin

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The University of Tennessee, Martin branch, handed Southeast Missouri State college its second home defeat in two weeks Saturday night at Houck field, 17-14. A large crowd sat in the drizzling rain and watched the home town eleven go down to defeat.

Martin's Larry Shanks opened the scoring in the game with 4:42 left in the first period on a three-yard run. Mayo converted for a 7-0 lead.

A drive that started on the Indians 47-yard line and ended a a nine yard TD run by Bob Hayes. Mayo kicked the extra point and took a 17-7 lead in the game with 7:58 in the third period after holding a 10-7 first half edge.

FOOTBALL FATALITY

JACKSON, Miss. AP A high school football player died Sunday night in a hospital of injuries suffered in a game 15 days earlier.

The victim was David Mills Jr., 16, who was an end for a school that opened this year, Jackson Wingield.

Adjournment Press Illumines Contrast in Legislative Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress sweeps aside the secondary bills and piles up for attention the business it must transact before adjourning, a contrast of personality and style near the top shows up more clearly than ever.

It highlights the differences between two members who must work together if vital tax legislation is to move smoothly through the legislative machinery. The two top men in this field are the chairmen of the House Ways and Means and the Senate Finance Committees, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

Immediate problems facing Mills and Long include an overhaul of the 31-year-old unemployment compensation system. The bill was passed in different forms by the two chambers and has been stalled for more than two months as, apparently, Mills and Long have not been able to agree even on the preliminaries of compromise. The bill may die with this Congress.

Trouble evidently awaits another bill, passed by the House, to encourage foreign investment in the United States. Long's committee loaded it with no fewer than 27 wholly extraneous amendments, ranging from new depletion rules on clamshells to a pet plan of Long himself for financing presidential campaigns. Mills is known to detest the Senate practice of tying riders to House bills. These must be handled in conference, rather than through regular House committee deliberation.

The House also has passed President Johnson's bill to suspend business tax incentives as an anti-inflation move. Besieged by requests for exceptions, which the administration opposes, Mills' Ways and Means Committee stood firm on all but two. But members are openly questioning whether the Finance Committe, and the Senate itself, will perform as firmly.

The different approaches of Mills and Long have been more and more apparent since Long succeeded to the finance chairmanship last year when Sen. Harry F. Byrd Sr. of Virginia retired. Mills, Chairman of Ways and Means for some nine years, worked well enough with Byrd.

Meticulous preparation, caution and patience are Mills' characteristics. He brings bills to the floor only when there is no reasonable chance of defeat. An associate remarked, "Wilbur's idea of a consensus is 90 per cent."

Long takes chances and makes gestures. His current project for taxpayers to authorize $1 allotments to political parties of their choice is widely regarded as a trial balloon rather than a serious candidate for enactment by the present Congress.

A Ward About Ozark Anglish

Harold Hamil, Editor, in The Cooperative Consumer

One of the things we picked up on a recent trip through southern Missouri and northern Arkansas was a little booklet called, "How to Talk Pure Ozark in One Easy Lesson."

Some 300 words and phrases are listed, with examples as to how they fit into the speech of those who use them. Most anyone with a sensitive ear will recall having heard many of the words and expressions from people who never lived in the Ozarks.

Most of the speech peculiarities of the Ozarks were perfected by the hill peoples of the Carolinas, Tennessee, West Virginia and Kentucky long before they started sending the more venturesome of their number into Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and other states.

My own parents, going to Colorado from east Tennessee in the first years of this century, found themselves using words and expressions that were unfamiliar to their neighbors. My mother worked hard at removing any trace of Southern origin from her speech, and she was particularly careful to point out that some of the grammar we heard on the ranch was to be avoided almost as much as the cusswords with which the bunkhouse sometimes rang.

My father, less concerned with such things, said "hep" for "help" even as Lyndon Johnson seems to do on occasion. Dale Freeman, author of the little book and city editor of the Springfield Leader and Press, lists "hep" as good Ozark, but, along with other expressions, it has traveled a long way from the hill regions.

Moving to St. Louis some 20 years ago, we were amazed by the similarity between peculiarities of speech we heard in our neighborhood there and what we had always associated with hill country. The people of our South St. Louis neighborhood were predominantly of German descent, and amny families were three and four generations removed from Germany or the rural communities through which some of them had passed.

Yet it was not uncommon to hear expressions to which Author Freeman attributes an Ozark or Applaachian origin. Somebody had put together a combination of South St. Louisisms in terms of a woman's explanation to the corner druggist and his wife: "Youse won't need to warsh them sody bottles, 'cause I already wrenched them in the zinc."

Zinc for sink was straight South St. Louis, so far as I know. But, "sody" and "wrench," according to our new guide, are good Ozark. Hill people, though, always have preferred "you'ns" over "youse" for the plural of you. It was obvious that the use of "youse" could survive four years in one of the St. Louis high schools. We met person after person in whom it did.

The irony of all this is that the South St. Louis native tended to look down on anyone who was known to have come to the city from a so-called backward rural area. (He always suspected these people of a willingnes to work or low wages.) The intruders were called "hossiers," in a scornful application to people who came mostly from Southern Missouri and Illinois of a term that natives of Indiana use on themselves with pride.

One of the words in Freeman's list is "taken" as in saying, "He taken her home from the pie supper." The refusal to use "took" in this sense is deeply rooted, because it has spread into rural areas whose people are many generations from either the Appalachians or the Ozarks.

Back in the early '30s, we stopped for lunch in an east Tennessee county seat. As we came from the restaurant, we observed two natives scanning the Nebraska license tag and overheard one of them say, "New Brasky." We hadn't thought of the occasion for years till we read in Freeman's list that this is good Ozark pronunciation of the name of that state. Nebraska's neighbor to the south is called "Cainsus," and Missouri's neighbor to the North is "Io-Way."

Reading Freeman's list and drawing on my own observations through the years, I have tried to find some tendency that would serve as a simple explanation of English as it is spoken by Ozarkers and other Americans who share some of their deviations from our so-called standard speech. I have concluded that the accent is mainly on the "a."

Freeman's list of terms would seem to uphold the soundness of that theory. The first word in his dictionary is "absence," and it is defined as "A French drank, alcoholic."

"Aggs" are something farmers sell by the dozen. A Chevrolet has an "ainjun" and the jumpy man has "aints" in his "paints."

The tall structure from which men look out over the National forests in Arkansas and Missouri is a "far tar" and you "craink" up an old "cyar." In short, you manage to do something to the "a" in any word --even to the point of supplying it when it's missing -- or you don't talk "Anglish" as it is supposed to be talked in the Ozarks.

The trouble is, as we observed on our recent trip, there is a lot more emphasis on Ozarkisms in books and tourists guides than in the people themselves. Most of the people who talk the way Ozarkers are supposed to talk have gone to Kansas City or St. Louis or Chicago, and in their place are people like the two women running an antique shop -- well groomed, cultured in their appearance and their speech. Or the petite little country postmistress--fresh from the hairdresser and giving advice to inquiring tourists without a trace of colloquialism in her choice of words.

And then there was the School of the Ozarks, an institution established as a sort of uplifting link between the remote highland origins of its students and the outside world.

We came along near the close of a week of cultural events on the spreading campus that was climaxed by a musical program. And the emphasis was on a mammoth pipe organ, a harp, and some kettle drums. No fiddles, no banjos, no hillbilly singing. These, too, have strayed from their native haunts -- to New York, to Hollywood, and Nashville.

People are getting harder to sport and classify, whether by the words they use of by what they like to look at or listen to.

N.Y. Traffic Boss Finds Solace in London's Jams

LONGON AP -- If misery loves company, then Londoners, strangling in their motor snarls, felt a little better when they read New York Traffic Commissioner Henry Barnes' remark:

"London was such a mess that it made me feel real good to come back to our own chaos."

Barnes came here to inspect London's traffic and its attempted solutions. His tart comments drew many a "Yeah, yeah, amen!" response.

One of their handiest solutions is to push more people underground. The new Victoria-Oxford Circus subway link is being rushed to completion.

The number of buses is being reduced — has been for more than a decade.

But the London transport authority wails: "Even if large sums are spent on London's road network, the buses generally cannot be expected to run significantly better as a result of the construction program alone. There will be too many other vehicles trying to use the highways."

The Ministry of Health says Britain has halted its population explosion. The birth rate has fallen for the first time since 1955.

But back to Barnes. He told New York correspondents of British papers: "What London needs is somebody in a position like mine — with over-all authority to make any regulation deemed necessary for traffic control. In London there are too many fingers in the pie."

But Barnes had compliments for Britons. He found London drivers "excellent and extremely police." The New York traffic czar was quoted:

"I can't imagine a New York cab driver or any other New York motorist motioning another car to go ahead. The courtesy of London drivers is fantastic. I suppose it has to be for them to stay alive."

'Kwai' Film Tops Nielson TV Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Only one new television series, ABC's "Rat Patrol," — ranked third appeared in the top 10 shows listed in the national Nielsen report published today.

In ratings of network shows broadcast during the two weeks ending Sept. 25, ABC's broadcast of the feature film, "Bridge on the River Kwai" swept the field, building the largest audience of the season, according to the A. C. Nielsen Co. report, unofficial but authoritative measuring tool of the industry.

Other shows in the Nielsen list of "Top 10" programs were, in order: "Green Acres," (CBS), second; "Gomer Pyle," (CBS), fourth; "Bonanza," (NBC); "Andy Griffith Show," (CBS); Saturday night movie (NBC); "Lucy Show," "Red Skelton Show," "Jackie Gleason Show" and "Beverly Hillbillies," (all CBS) the latter two tieing for 10th spot.

Three other new shows were in the top 20 list -- CBS' Family Affair," ABC's "Felony Squad" and NBC's "Occasional Wife."

The ratings, projected from an audience sample of some 1,200 homes, gave NBC a slight edge in the averages, 18.4, followed by CBS with 18.3 and ABC, 17.9.

Some new programs winding up toward the bottom of the long list included ABC's "Stage 67," "Hawk" and "Shane."

Supreme Court To Review Labor Case

supreme court 3 18

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to review a decision that federal labor laws bar a union from fining its members for crossing picket lines.

The decision was given by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago in a case affecting Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. plants and workers in West Allis and La Crosse, Wis. The decision was appealed to the Supreme Court by the National Labor Relations Board.

In 1959 and in 1962 the United Auto Workers called strikes at the plants in furtherance of new contract demands. After each strike the union charged its members who had crossed picket lines with violating UAW's constitution and bylaws. The members were fined in amounts varying from $20 to $100. Some refused to pay and the company filed charges with the National Labor Relations Board.

Allis-Chalmers said the fines amounted to coercion of employes who exercised their right to refrain from taking part in union activities. The board said there was no violation of employe rights, but was overruled by the circuit court.

Appealing to the high tribunal, the board said Congress did not intend to bar a union from discipling its members "for violating a reasonable union rule like that here."

Three states, Arizona, New Mexico and Utah are touched by the Navajo Indian reservation of nearly 16-million acres.

To be sure, we cannot make the wind blow. But we do not need to do so, for it is already blowing. Wherever the Son of God goes, the winds of God are blowing, the streams of living water are flowing, and the sun of God is smiling. He is the bodily guarantee that the sun and streams and wind of God are round me. I do not need to seek them. I am already encircled by the rush of wind and water and the radiance of light when Jesus begins to speak.

Adjournment Press Illumines Contrast in Legislative Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress sweeps aside the secondary bills and piles up for attention the business it must transact before adjourning, a contrast of personality and style near the top shows up more clearly than ever.

It highlights the differences between two members who must work together if vital tax legislation is to move smoothly through the legislative machinery. The two top men in this field are the chairmen of the House Ways and Means and the Senate Finance Committees, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

Immediate problems facing Mills and Long include an overhaul of the 31-year-old unemployment compensation system. The bill was passed in different forms by the two chambers and has been stalled for more than two months as, apparently, Mills and Long have not been able to agree even on the preliminaries of compromise. The bill may die with this Congress.

Trouble evidently awaits another bill, passed by the House, to encourage foreign investment in the United States. Long's committee loaded it with no fewer than 27 wholly extraneous amendments, ranging from new depletion rules on clamshells to a pet plan of Long himself for financing presidential campaigns. Mills is known to detest the Senate practice of tying riders to House bills. These must be handled in conference, rather than through regular House committee deliberation.

The House also has passed President Johnson's bill to suspend business tax incentives as an anti-inflation move. Besieged by requests for exceptions, which the administration opposes, Mills' Ways and Means Committee stood firm on all but two. But members are openly questioning whether the Finance Committe, and the Senate itself, will perform as firmly.

The different approaches of Mills and Long have been more and more apparent since Long succeeded to the finance chairmanship last year when Sen. Harry F. Byrd Sr. of Virginia retired. Mills, Chairman of Ways and Means for some nine years, worked well enough with Byrd.

Meticulous preparation, caution and patience are Mills' characteristics. He brings bills to the floor only when there is no reasonable chance of defeat. An associate remarked, "Wilbur's idea of a consensus is 90 per cent."

Long takes chances and makes gestures. His current project for taxpayers to authorize $1 allotments to political parties of their choice is widely regarded as a trial balloon rather than a serious candidate for enactment by the present Congress.

Film Industry Joyed By 'Kwai' Hit on TV

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — No event in recent times has so cheered the film industry as when "The Bridge on the River Kwai" walloped its opposition during three hours on ABC a fortnight ago.

ABC gambled by paying $2 million to Columbia Pictures for two network showings of "Kwai." The gamble succeeded when Ford agreed to lay out $1,200,000, plus $600,000 for air time, to use the 1957 Academy Award winner as a showcase for its 1967 models.

Ford has no complaints over the results, since the showing attracted an audience estimated at 60 million. That's approximately 10 million more than saw the film during its two releases worldwide.

The smashing success of "Kwai" touched off a gold rush for feature movies that have not been sold to television. CBS plunked down $800,000 apiece for 63 MGM films, including such recent films as "The Sandpiper" and "Night of the Iguana," plus 18 that haven't even been made yet.

ABC paid $19.5 million for 17 recent films made by 20th-Century-Fox. The deal included the biggest payment in history for a single movie: $5 million for two showings of "Cleopatra" in 1971 or after. The studio noted happily that the fee will push the $40-million epic into the black.

More big-money transactions are likely to be announced in the future, since the networks need five movies a week to fill nighttime schedules.

Here's how:

1. The flow of millions into the film company treasuries simplifies what was becoming a thorny problem: financing. As in other areas of the economy, loans for movies were getting scarce, and banks were especially leary of multimillion - dollar productions.

2. The networks are now virtually underwriting part of the cost of producing new films. This is demonstrated in the MGM-CBS deal, in which the studio is paid $80,000 toward the budgets of each of 18 future films. Such pre-financing eliminates a great deal of risk in starting new projects.

INKY'S LAMENT

Else, surely, he'd call me some morning for a wild bit of romping and play.

I miss his clear, whistle that pierces the wide open fields where I roam.

(It was always so good to remember he was waiting to welcome me home!)

They tell me that he has gone "camping" -- now what, pray inform me, is that?

Are there other dogs there he could play with; or, by some sad misfortune, a cat?

I suppose I must wait his returning with such courage as I can sustain--

But, if I have my say, I can promise that he never will leave me again!

"Operation Bootstrap" was the subject of the program of the Woman's Society of Christian Service Thursday at the First Methodist church.

Mrs. Robert Dempster was program leader and presented the devotional. The contrast in the lives of two women, one from a home of affluence and the other who had lived in poverty, was portrayed by Mrs. Raymert Miller and Mrs. Harrison Tanner in a skit titled, "Two in a Trap."

Mrs. Dempster closed the meeting with prayer.

Announcement was made that the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. Otto Hahs are invited members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service to be guests at the golden wedding anniversary for their parents Sunday from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the church.

Mrs. Vincent Wissman, spiritual life secretary, announced that a quiet day will be observed from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Oct. 25. Other prayer services will be Oct. 26 through Oct. 28 from 9:30 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Two new officers of the W.S.C.S. are Mrs. Joseph Wagner, secretary of missionary personnel and Mrs. William Proffer, secretary of program materials.

Work day will be held in the church dining room from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday. Members will work on items for the annual church bazaar.

Committees for the bazaar are needlework and holiday hints, Mrs. Robert Dempster and Mrs. Helen Jones; take home food, Mrs. Joe Dye; lunch preparation, Mrs. Rex Johnson and Dempsey Gardner; serving, Mrs. Lotus Emerson; nearly new and grab bag, Mrs. Howard Johnson and Mrs. Harold Hill; decorations, Mrs. M. L. Canedy; cashier, Mrs. Stella Emory; publicity, Mrs. Chip Schmerbauch.

The general committee is Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Harris Bess, Mrs. Val Sharp, Mrs. Robert Mitchell and Mrs. Hill.

Luncheon was served in the dining room by chairman of circle II, Mrs. E. J. Nienstedt, and members.

Woman Who Can't Drive Is Transportation Minister

It was her last excuse to avoid leaving a job in the Overseas Development Ministry to head the Transport Ministry -- the traditional "hot seat" in ministerial appointments.

But today Mrs. Castle begins a 12-day tour of the United States to study transportation developments in San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Boston and Washington.

"When you're a woman in politics, you have to prove yourself three times over — you can't be average," she says.

"It was tough at times, but never in my whole life have I felt like giving up politics," she added.

Political observers say Wilson knew what he was doing when he gave Mrs. Castle the nation's complex and frequently snarled traffic problems.

The task of managing Britain's often antiquated road and rail system is one vitally tied in with the big rescue operation which Wilson seeks for the ailing economy.

Mrs. Castle put it in a nutshell when she told newsmen after her appointment in December last year: "The problems are there for us to see. We live with them. The misery of the computer, the death toll on the road and the fact that traffic will come to a standstill unless we have some new ideas."

She is married to a British newsman. They have no children.

Mrs. Castle says she often falls back on her husband, Ted, for consolation when the going gets rough.

"I sit there moaning "I'm a failure, I'm a failure," she says, "until he can't stand it any longer and shouts, 'All right, you're a failure, now shut up'."

"When you're a woman in politics, you have to prove yourself three times over — you can't be average," she says.

"It was tough at times, but never in my whole life have I felt like giving up politics," she added.

Political observers say Wilson knew what he was doing when he gave Mrs. Castle the nation's complex and frequently snarled traffic problems.

The task of managing Britain's often antiquated road and rail system is one vitally tied in with the big rescue operation which Wilson seeks for the ailing economy.

Mrs. Castle put it in a nutshell when she told newsmen after her appointment in December last year: "The problems are there for us to see. We live with them. The misery of the computer, the death toll on the road and the fact that traffic will come to a standstill unless we have some new ideas."

She is married to a British newsman. They have no children.

Mrs. Castle says she often falls back on her husband, Ted, for consolation when the going gets rough.

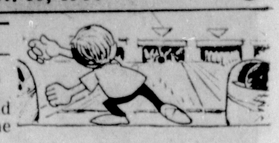

"I sit there moaning "I'm a failure, I'm a failure," she says, "until he can't stand it any longer and shouts, 'All right, you're a failure, now shut up'."

Oscillating October

A cool October is the outlook for the eastern half of the nation and the Southern Plains while temperatures should be above normal in western areas.

Gulf and Atlantic Coast areas can look for heavier precipitation than usual while the outlook is drier for the Midwest, Northern Plains and much of the West.

Sukarno Role In Coup Hard To Pin Down

TOKYO (AP) — Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik said today he knew of no proof that President Sukarno was involved in the abortive Communist coup attempt in Indonesia last year.

However, he noted that Sukarno's name has been mentioned in testimony at the trial in Jakarta of former Foreign Minister Subandrio and said the judiciary would investigate those references.

Speaking at the Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan, Malik said if Sukarno's involvement in the coup attempt is established "or that he ever was at fault, the People's Consultative Assembly will ask for his explanaton."

Subandrio, accused of being involved in the October 1965 coup attempt, is now on trial on charges of treason, subversion and corruption.

Sukarno's name has cropped up frequently in testimony concerning Communist party activities in Indonesia, but there has been no direct accusation against him. He said in a statement read at the trial that he had no knowledge of the planned coup.

Malik, in Tokyo on a global tour to explain the policies of the new Indonesian govrnment, also clarified Sukarno's role in the government.

He said the president's position is now subordinate to the People's Consultative Assembly, headed by Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, and that anything Sukarno says in contradiction to the assembly "of course cannot be implemented."

"The government is trying to return the position of the president to that of the constitution and to the decisions of the assembly," he said. Then he added: "Of course, the president himself has the right to resign if he feels he does not want to continue."

Malik's statement was the clearest given thus far by a government minister of Sukarno's actual role since the military took over the government in March.

Moscow Car Dealer Has Complaint

V. Osiuo, director of the car and parts distribution center near Yelokhovka Cathedral, voiced his complaint in the popular Moscow newspaper Vechernaya Moskva — Evening Moscow. He said his showroom is too small and always overcrowded.

"Many people coming in are surprised to find out how long the procedure is," he said.

"You have to wait in line to make an application. You leave a postcard with your address. You wait. Finally you are invited to come back.

"But not to get your car. First, you have to pay for it."

Osiko did not mention the prices, but they are high. A $4,000 Moskvich is smaller than an American compact. Other models are similarly expensive.

Despite this and the many difficulties involved, the Soviet public shows every intention of bringing a full-fledged car civilization to this country. Passenger car production is scheduled to rise from 200,000 last year to 800,000 in 1970.

The director said the buyer had another wait of some months after paying his money.

"You discover you need a spare part," Osiko said. "Something simple, like a float for a carburetor or glass for your tail light. Something that should cost only a few kopecks.

Osiko said the shortages arise because all spare parts are given to a giant combine called Zelkholz Tekhnika and "this organization, naturally, provides first for its own branches. What is left goes to retail outlets. Unfortunately, this is very little."

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Missouri

To be submitted to the qualified voters of the State of Missouri at a general election

To be held on Tuesday, the Eighth day of November, 1966

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 1

(Submitted by the 73rd General Assembly)

Authorize St. Louis County and St. Louis City to adopt a plan for partial or complete government of all or any part of the county and city and provide the method of selecting a board of freeholders.

JOINT RESOLUTION

Submitting to the qualified voters of the state of Missouri an amendment repealing Section 30 (a) of Article VI of the Constitution of the State of Missouri, relating to the City and County of St. Louis, and adopting one new section in lieu thereof relating to the same subject.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring therein:

That at the general election to be held in this state on the first Tuesday next following the first Monday in November, 1966, or at a special election to be called by the governor for that purpose, there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of this state for adoption or rejection, the following amendment to the constitution of the state of Missouri:

Section 1. The constitution of the state of Missouri is amended by repealing section 30 (a) of Article VI, and adopting one new section in lieu thereof to be known as section 30 (a), to read as follows:

Section 30 (a). The people of the city of St. Louis and the people of the county of St. Louis shall have power (1) to consolidate the territories and governments of the city and county into one political subdivision under the municipal government of the city of St. Louis; or, (2) to extend the territorial boundaries of the county so as to embrace the territory within the city and to reorganize and consolidate the county governments of the city and county, and adjust their relations as thus united, and thereafter the city may extend its limits in the manner provided by law for other cities; or, (3) to enlarge the present or future limits of the city by annexing thereto part of the territory of the county, and to confer upon the city exclusive jurisdiction of the territory so annexed to the city; or, (4) to establish a metropolitan district or districts for the functional administration of services common to the area included therein; or, (5) to formulate and adopt any other plan for the partial or complete government of all or any part of the city and the county. The power so given shall be exercised by the vote of the people of the city and county upon a plan prepared by a board of freeholders consisting of nineteen members, nine of whom shall be electors of the city and nine electors of the county and one an elector of some other county. Upon the filing with the officials in general charge of elections in the city of a petition proposing the exercise of the powers hereby granted, signed by registered voters of the city in such number as shall equal three per cent of the total vote cast in the city at the last general election for governor, and the certification thereof by the election officials to the mayor, and to the governor, then, within ten days after the certification the mayor shall, with the approval of a majority of the board of aldermen, appoint the city's nine members of the board, not more than five of whom shall be members of or affiliated with the same political party. Each member so appointed shall be given a certificate certifying his appointment signed by the mayor and attested by the seal of the city. Upon the filing with the officials in general charge of elections in the county of a similar petition signed by registered voters of the county, in such number as shall equal three per cent of the total vote cast in the county at the last general election for governor, and the certification thereof by the county election officials to the county supervisor of the county and to the governor, within ten days after the certification, the county supervisor shall, with the approval of a majority of the county council, appoint the county's nine members of the board, not more than five of whom shall be members of or affiliated with the same political party. Each member so appointed shall be given a certificate of his appointment signed by the county supervisor and attested by the seal of the county.

STATE OF MISSOURI } SS
DEPARTMENT OF STATE }

I, JAMES C. KIRKPATRICK, Secretary of State of Missouri, hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true and complete copy of House Joint Resolution No. 1 of the 73rd General Assembly of the State of Missouri, to be submitted to the voters of the State of Missouri at the General Election to be held on the Eighth day of November, 1966.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I hereunto set my hand and affix the Great Seal of the State of Missouri. Done at City of Jefferson, 12th day of September, 1966.

Oscillating October

A cool October is the outlook for the eastern half of the nation and the Southern Plains while temperatures should be above normal in western areas.

Gulf and Atlantic Coast areas can look for heavier precipitation than usual while the outlook is drier for the Midwest, Northern Plains and much of the West.

Sukarno Role In Coup Hard To Pin Down

TOKYO (AP) — Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik said today he knew of no proof that President Sukarno was involved in the abortive Communist coup attempt in Indonesia last year.

However, he noted that Sukarno's name has been mentioned in testimony at the trial in Jakarta of former Foreign Minister Subandrio and said the judiciary would investigate those references.

Speaking at the Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan, Malik said if Sukarno's involvement in the coup attempt is established "or that he ever was at fault, the People's Consultative Assembly will ask for his explanaton."

Subandrio, accused of being involved in the October 1965 coup attempt, is now on trial on charges of treason, subversion and corruption.

Sukarno's name has cropped up frequently in testimony concerning Communist party activities in Indonesia, but there has been no direct accusation against him. He said in a statement read at the trial that he had no knowledge of the planned coup.

Malik, in Tokyo on a global tour to explain the policies of the new Indonesian govrnment, also clarified Sukarno's role in the government.

He said the president's position is now subordinate to the People's Consultative Assembly, headed by Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, and that anything Sukarno says in contradiction to the assembly "of course cannot be implemented."

"The government is trying to return the position of the president to that of the constitution and to the decisions of the assembly," he said. Then he added: "Of course, the president himself has the right to resign if he feels he does not want to continue."

Malik's statement was the clearest given thus far by a government minister of Sukarno's actual role since the military took over the government in March.

Moscow Car Dealer Has Complaint

V. Osiuo, director of the car and parts distribution center near Yelokhovka Cathedral, voiced his complaint in the popular Moscow newspaper Vechernaya Moskva — Evening Moscow. He said his showroom is too small and always overcrowded.

"Many people coming in are surprised to find out how long the procedure is," he said.

"You have to wait in line to make an application. You leave a postcard with your address. You wait. Finally you are invited to come back.

"But not to get your car. First, you have to pay for it."

Osiko did not mention the prices, but they are high. A $4,000 Moskvich is smaller than an American compact. Other models are similarly expensive.

Despite this and the many difficulties involved, the Soviet public shows every intention of bringing a full-fledged car civilization to this country. Passenger car production is scheduled to rise from 200,000 last year to 800,000 in 1970.

The director said the buyer had another wait of some months after paying his money.

"You discover you need a spare part," Osiko said. "Something simple, like a float for a carburetor or glass for your tail light. Something that should cost only a few kopecks.

Osiko said the shortages arise because all spare parts are given to a giant combine called Zelkholz Tekhnika and "this organization, naturally, provides first for its own branches. What is left goes to retail outlets. Unfortunately, this is very little."

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Missouri

To be submitted to the qualified voters of the State of Missouri at a general election

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 1

(Submitted by the 73rd General Assembly)

Authorize St. Louis County and St. Louis City to adopt a plan for partial or complete government of all or any part of the county and city and provide the method of selecting a board of freeholders.

JOINT RESOLUTION

Submitting to the qualified voters of the state of Missouri an amendment repealing Section 30 (a) of Article VI of the Constitution of the State of Missouri, relating to the City and County of St. Louis, and adopting one new section in lieu thereof relating to the same subject.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring therein:

That at the general election to be held in this state on the first Tuesday next following the first Monday in November, 1966, or at a special election to be called by the governor for that purpose, there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of this state for adoption or rejection, the following amendment to the constitution of the state of Missouri:

Section 1. The constitution of the state of Missouri is amended by repealing section 30 (a) of Article VI, and adopting one new section in lieu thereof to be known as section 30 (a), to read as follows:

Section 30 (a). The people of the city of St. Louis and the people of the county of St. Louis shall have power (1) to consolidate the territories and governments of the city and county into one political subdivision under the municipal government of the city of St. Louis; or, (2) to extend the territorial boundaries of the county so as to embrace the territory within the city and to reorganize and consolidate the county governments of the city and county, and adjust their relations as thus united, and thereafter the city may extend its limits in the manner provided by law for other cities; or, (3) to enlarge the present or future limits of the city by annexing thereto part of the territory of the county, and to confer upon the city exclusive jurisdiction of the territory so annexed to the city; or, (4) to establish a metropolitan district or districts for the functional administration of services common to the area included therein; or, (5) to formulate and adopt any other plan for the partial or complete government of all or any part of the city and the county. The power so given shall be exercised by the vote of the people of the city and county upon a plan prepared by a board of freeholders consisting of nineteen members, nine of whom shall be electors of the city and nine electors of the county and one an elector of some other county. Upon the filing with the officials in general charge of elections in the city of a petition proposing the exercise of the powers hereby granted, signed by registered voters of the city in such number as shall equal three per cent of the total vote cast in the city at the last general election for governor, and the certification thereof by the election officials to the mayor, and to the governor, then, within ten days after the certification the mayor shall, with the approval of a majority of the board of aldermen, appoint the city's nine members of the board, not more than five of whom shall be members of or affiliated with the same political party. Each member so appointed shall be given a certificate certifying his appointment signed by the mayor and attested by the seal of the city. Upon the filing with the officials in general charge of elections in the county of a similar petition signed by registered voters of the county, in such number as shall equal three per cent of the total vote cast in the county at the last general election for governor, and the certification thereof by the county election officials to the county supervisor of the county and to the governor, within ten days after the certification, the county supervisor shall, with the approval of a majority of the county council, appoint the county's nine members of the board, not more than five of whom shall be members of or affiliated with the same political party. Each member so appointed shall be given a certificate of his appointment signed by the county supervisor and attested by the seal of the county.

STATE OF MISSOURI
DEPARTMENT OF STATE } SS

I, JAMES C. KIRKPATRICK, Secretary of State of State of Missouri, hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true and complete copy of House Joint Resolution No. 1 of the 73rd General Assembly of the State of Missouri, to be submitted to the voters of the State of Missouri at the General Election to be held on the Eighth day of November, 1966.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I hereunto set my hand and affix the Great Seal of the State of Missouri. Done at City of Jefferson, 12th day of September, 1966.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a thoracic surgeon. He has operated on hundreds of people whose lungs have been ravaged by cigarettes. As you know, medical science has discovered a link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

We are very proud of our two teen-age daughters. They have been warned of the dangers of smoking and I doubt seriously that they will ever take up the habit.

Both girls are popular. They go to many house parties and their friends seem to be level-headed and sensible. Drinking is not allowed at these parties since we parents have agreed to ban it.

Now my husband wants to impose an additional ban when these teen-agers come to our home --- no smoking. He has explained that it is not a moral issue but a health issue.

Our daughters are unhappy about it and have let him know it. They feel that this rule will keep some of their friends away.

I do not want to challenge my husband's authority as head of the house, nor do I question his professional conclusions. But I DO question whether it is wise to impose our health standards on others. Will you express your opinion, please? --- SURGEON'S WIFE

Dear Wife: If your husband were a teacher or a clergyman I would agree with you. The teen-agers would certainly interpret the cigarette ban as a moral issue in spite of his protestations and they would resent it --- as well they might.

Since your husband is a surgeon, however, I feel that the ban against smoking in your home would serve as an effective reminder that cigarettes can be deadly. A sensible teenager would not be resentful of the prohibition, he would be respectful ---and perhaps even grateful. I say more power to your husband.

Dear Ann Landers: Who gives the wedding when the girl's parents are divorced?

My first husband (the father of the girl) wants to foot the bills, which is just fine with me. My present husband has never met my first husband and has no desire to meet him. He says he will not go.

I, on the other hand, dread the whole affair because my ex-husband's wife will be there and I despise her.

Our daughter doesn't care who gives the wedding or who attends. She is interested only in having the most elegant and glamorous affair possible. In other words she's selling out to the highest bidder. What do you think about his? ---N.Y. MESS

Dear N.Y. Mess: Let the girl's father pay for the wedding. Leave your present husband at home. Put on your best face and be as gracious as you can to the woman you despise. This is little enough to do for a girl who undoubtedly has shed many tears because her parents could not make it together.

Armed Forces

FAIRCHILD AIR FORCE BASE, WASH. -- Strategic Air Command combat crews in the 1966 Combat Competition should find better weather along the 2,946 mile flight route this year. Some crews ran into severe turbulence and damaging hail during the 1965 contest.

Following that competition, weathermen made a study which indicated that better weather could be expected if the event were held in October. Low level storms and hail are less likely then, according to the study. But weather will still play a key role in the 1966 Combat Competition, beginning tomorrow.

As a matter of fact, weather has already taken a hand in the competition. The 72nd Bomb Wing's B-52 Stratofortress crew from Ramey Air Force Base, Puerto rico, arrived here early -- chased from its island home by hurricane Inez. Colonel Robert D. Johnson, chief of Aerospace Sciences Division, 3rd Weather Wing, is the competition weather support team chief and will direct all weather operations. He is assisted by Lieutenant Colonels Leonard E. Zapinski, senior briefing officer, and C. C. Hardin, chief forecaster. Eighteen specialists are involved on the weather team.

This team will have some sophisticated help. Appropriate information from the recently launched Essa II Automatic Picture Transmission Satellite will aid the local forecasts. Essa II, which maintains a weather watch inspace will transmit weather pictures direct to the global weather center at Offut Air Force Base, Neb.

Daily weather sorties flown by KC-135 and B-52 aircraft will supplement the information from other sources and make possible a continuous weather watch throughout each mission.

Once the competition starts, A KC-135 weather scout aircraft will fly a route selected by Colonel Johnston's staff. This crew will check conditions in the vicinity of the bombing route that the competition aircraft will fly. Data will be relayed back to the competition weather station.

When all data has been evaluated, the go or no - go decision will be made by the competition commander. Since flying safety is the uppermost consideration during the competition, the bombers would not be launched if weather presented a hazard.

When the go decision is made, all crews will be briefed on the weather situation and receive "flimsies" -- maps and tables describing all significant weather along the route.

The job doesn't end with the launch of the bombers. Incoming weather information continues to be monitored and evaluated so that significant changes can be given to the airborne crews.

LONG BINH, VIETNAM (AHTNC) -- John H. Bailey Jr., 27, whose father lives in Crawfordsville, Ark., was promoted to Army specialist fourth class Sept. 15 in Vietnam, where he is serving with the 53rd Signal Battalion.

Spec. Bailey, a lineman in Company B of the battalion in Long Binh, entered on active duty in July 1952 and was stationed at Ft. Hood, Tex., before arriving overseas last June.

His wife, Maglean, lives in Matthews, Mo.

U.S. ARMY, VIETNAM (AHTNC) -- Army Private Carl J. Jones, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Jones, Route 1, Box 178, Galena, Mo., just arrived in Vietnam with the main elements of the 4th Infantry Division.

One brigade of the division--4,000 strong -- arrived ahead of the main body on Aug. 6. The unit was last stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

He entered the Army in December 1965. His wife, Jeanine, lives in Charleston.

The School Lunch Market For Food

Consider 3,638,000 cases of food, each case containing six No. 10 cans, and the cans filled with apricots, applesauce, sliced apples, beans, corn, grapefruit sections, peas, pineapple, sweetpotatoes, and tomatoes. Add 17,402,000 pounds of beef canned in natural juices, 49,430,000 pounds of frozen beef, and 37,320,000 pounds of cut - up frozen chickens -- and you have a start toward realizing how much food is used in the National School Lunch Program.

The 3.64 million cases and the more than 100 million pounds of beef and chicken represent special, direct, purchases of food made by the Federal Government for the 1965-66 school year for public and private schools participating in the National School Lunch Program. Such purchases are made through the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, which administers the school lunch program nationally. They are designed to help participating schools meet the nutritional needs of their pupil - consumers. The foods cost about $60-million.

But these federal purchases are only the beginning of the NSLP food needs -- only, in fact, a few servings for some 18 million hungry school lunchers. In addition, school lunch programs are also eligible to receive food acquired by the government under price support and surplus removal programs. In an average year these foods amount to $125 million in value. Schools participating in the program across the nation will buy locally about 80 percent of the total food used in the School Lunch Program. For fiscal 1966, these local food purchases are expected to reach $790 - million.

The National School Lunch Program thus aids local economies by purchasing substantial portions of its food from local merchants. Total program costs, including food, labor, and other expenses, are expected to reach $1.5 billion in fiscal 1966. This represents a sizable industry, benefiting many adults directly with jobs and business opportunities. More importantly, though, is the satisfaction of seeing children well fed.

The National School Lunch Program promotes markets for food. Different menus everyday encourage students to eat a variety of food and thereby establish good dietary habits. These good habits follow the students into their adult lives when they become purchasers of food. Many foods, regional staples for generations, have become national favorites -- thanks to the universality of the National School Lunch Program. Such foods include rice and cornmeal. Cornbread, for example, has become such a favorite in some schools that students virtually demand that it be served at least once a week -- and this in areas where it was unknown before 1946.

National School Lunch specialists have also encouraged the use of many other foods that local lunchroom managers now find almost indispensable in their menu planning -- dry milk, dried eggs, dehydrated potatoes and many others. Canned fruits such as pears and plums have also found wider acceptance.

Furtive Feeler

MCNAMARA'S SPEECH in Montreal, delivered to the American Society of Newspaper Editors has been identified as A TRIAL BALLOON for universal "service" in a front page article by Jack A. Smith, writer for the NATIONAL GUARDIAN, one of the official organs of the Communist Party, U.S.A., in its May 28, 1966 edition.

Robert Strange McNamara, obviously speaking with the advice and consent of the Johnson Administration, appealed to the idealism of youth, referring to it as "a committed and dedicated generation" which by and large it is, if we exclude the small but noisy segment of draft card incinerators, dizzy demonstrators, sexual slobs and just plain punks.

He stated, with some accuracy, that " as matters now stand, our present selective systems draw on only a minority of eligible young men. This is an inequity." He goes on to propose that this inequity should be remedied by "asking every young person in the United States to give two years of service to his country -- whether in one of the military services, in the Peace Corps or in some volunteer developmental work at home or abroad."

The GUARDIAN article speculates this feeler might have had some connection with a "freedom draft card" pledge distributed by the STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY (SDS), which reads "I want to build, not burn . . . The efforts of many young Americans in civil rights and community organization are prime examples of what I want to do." This is an intriguing line of thought, in view of the Administration's record to date of catering to the views of organizations ranging from pink to pimento in ideological coloration.

PAUL BOOTH, National Secretary of SDS, said his organization, characterized by the GUARDIAN as the "largest of the radical (read Communist serving) student groups," does not "oppose a voluntary free-choice alternative service which would grant young people the option of working with non-government organizations, such as SDS itself, the American Friends Service Committee, or in community organization projects in the slums."

Now wouldn't THAT be dandy!!

At taxpayer expense, no doubt!! And this is probably an interpretation which the Socialist Society would be likely to buy.

The article disclosed that a Pentagon study of the draft, completed in 1965 but buried for 13 months, has been "re - oriented in the direction of universal service and will be completed and published next month." Smith speculated that McNamara's pronouncement "appeared to be part of an Administration move to inspire public approval for the universal public service concept which, if acceptable, would be promulgated in the Pentagon draft report."

In a recent SENTRY POST column, Albert T. Koen declares this is "a concept of the relationship between the government and the people which SHOULD SEND COLD CHILLS up the spine of every American who values freedom (which) belongs in Hitler's Germany, Mussolini's Italy, Soviet Russia and Mao's China." "Americans," he insists, "are not vassals of the State, to be herded into work camps to serve the government." Well not yet, perhaps -- but we're getting there -- and with McNamara's help the pace is accelerating!

It's not difficult to understand the tentative acceptance of this concept by the GUARDIAN writer, and the lefties he quotes. This is right down their alley. There's no assurance that, once the principle is accepted, the period of service will remain at two years. There's no logical reason the age bracket can't be expanded to include the entire population. And how long will it be until the camps in which these trainees are quartered, all over the world, will be tastefully decorated with barbed wire?

The evidence is all about us, if we will only open our eyes.

How far will the AMERICAN SHEEP follow the JUDAS GOATS of socialism, masquerading under the guise of a benevolent Great Society? All the way up the ramp to the slaughter house?

OR HAS THE HOUR ALREADY STRUCK?

Give Carol An 'A' for Fresh Faces

NEW YORK (AP) — Regardless of her show's grades, Carol Burnett rates an "A" and the audiences' gratitude for getting some new faces and fresh talent into her specials.

Sunday night, in her first CBS outing of the season, Miss Burnett came up with Rock Hudson and Ken Berry. Both gentlemen have had considerable exposure to audiences, but never before in the context of a musical variety show.

The most attractive and surprising guest star was Ken Berry. He is comedian in the weekly series, "F Troop," and plays the captain who is forever tripping over his sword. But Sunday night after a series of comedy falls, he strolled into a nimble dance solo which was a professional imitation of early Fred Astaire style.

Frank Gorshin, the impressionist, the only variety show veteran on the show, even turned temporarily into a singer — after he went through his usual series of imitations.

It was a tuneful, bright if not particularly inspired hour. Most of all though, it provided a nice change from the usual guest star lineup which seems to consist of the same people turning up on one show after another with approximately the same routines and songs.

The Burnett special was part of a curious programing set-up. It followed two previous hours CBS devoted to variety shows. Three solid hours of this sort of thing is a little excessive.

"The Garry Moore Show" which preceded it, seems to have picked up a little needed steam, although its sketches and comedy material generally remain on the lackluster side.

But the song and dance numbers were bright and sprightly and the production numbers handsome. The show is increasing its writing staff with some well-known comedy writing talent, which ought to start paying off within the next couple of weeks. And last night was a marked improvement over the earlier shows.

Boys 15 and 10 Pull Guns in Theft Scuffle

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two brothers, one 15 and the other 10, got into a scuffle Sunday with a supermarket employe in suburban Overland Park, Kan., who said he saw the boys try to sneak out of the store with a pair of expensive tape recorders.

In the scuffle, a .22 caliber pistol was fired twice and a .32 caliber tear gas pen went off. No one was hurt. Police said a customer disarmed the boys.

Jerry D. Robb, the supermarket's assistant manager, said the older pulled the pistol and ordered him to release his brother. Robb said he complied then jumped the one who had the gun.

Jerry Appleton, the customer who took the weapons away from the boys, said, "That little one shot at me. You just don't think of a little kid shooting at you. I grabbed the other gun, and the little one shot at me."

Overland Park police said the parents of the boys were located in Dallas and informed of the incident. They were placed overnight in the county detention home at Olathe, Kan. Their names were withheld by authorities under state law governing juveniles.

Dear N.Y. Mess: Let the girl's father pay for the wedding. Leave your present husband at home. Put on your best face and be as gracious as you can to the woman you despise. This is little enough to do for a girl who undoubtedly has shed many tears because her parents could not make it together.

FAIRCHILD AIR FORCE BASE, WASH. -- Strategic Air Command combat crews in the 1966 Combat Competition should find better weather along the 2,946 mile flight route this year. Some crews ran into severe turbulence and damaging hail during the 1965 contest.

Following that competition, weathermen made a study which indicated that better weather could be expected if the event were held in October. Low level storms and hail are less likely then, according to the study. But weather will still play a key role in the 1966 Combat Competition, beginning tomorrow.

As a matter of fact, weather has already taken a hand in the competition. The 72nd Bomb Wing's B-52 Stratofortress crew from Ramey Air Force Base, Puerto rico, arrived here early -- chased from its island home by hurricane Inez. Colonel Robert D. Johnson, chief of Aerospace Sciences Division, 3rd Weather Wing, is the competition weather support team chief and will direct all weather operations. He is assisted by Lieutenant Colonels Leonard E. Zapinski, senior briefing officer, and C. C. Hardin, chief forecaster. Eighteen specialists are involved on the weather team.

This team will have some sophisticated help. Appropriate information from the recently launched Essa II Automatic Picture Transmission Satellite will aid the local forecasts. Essa II, which maintains a weather watch inspace will transmit weather pictures direct to the global weather center at Offut Air Force Base, Neb.

Daily weather sorties flown by KC-135 and B-52 aircraft will supplement the information from other sources and make possible a continuous weather watch throughout each mission.

Once the competition starts, A KC-135 weather scout aircraft will fly a route selected by Colonel Johnston's staff. This crew will check conditions in the vicinity of the bombing route that the competition aircraft will fly. Data will be relayed back to the competition weather station.

When all data has been evaluated, the go or no - go decision will be made by the competition commander. Since flying safety is the uppermost consideration during the competition, the bombers would not be launched if weather presented a hazard.

When the go decision is made, all crews will be briefed on the weather situation and receive "flimsies" -- maps and tables describing all significant weather along the route.

The job doesn't end with the launch of the bombers. Incoming weather information continues to be monitored and evaluated so that significant changes can be given to the airborne crews.

LONG BINH, VIETNAM (AHTNC) -- John H. Bailey Jr., 27, whose father lives in Crawfordsville, Ark., was promoted to Army specialist fourth class Sept. 15 in Vietnam, where he is serving with the 53rd Signal Battalion.

For pay purposes, his new grade is equivalent to corporal.

Spec. Bailey, a lineman in Company B of the battalion in Long Binh, entered on active duty in July 1952 and was stationed at Ft. Hood, Tex., before arriving overseas last June.

His wife, Maglean, lives in Matthews, Mo.

U.S. ARMY, VIETNAM (AHTNC) -- Army Private Carl J. Jones, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Jones, Route 1, Box 178, Galena, Mo., just arrived in Vietnam with the main elements of the 4th Infantry Division.

One brigade of the division--4,000 strong -- arrived ahead of the main body on Aug. 6. The unit was last stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

The School Lunch Market For Food

Consider 3,638,000 cases of food, each case containing six No. 10 cans, and the cans filled with apricots, applesauce, sliced apples, beans, corn, grapefruit sections, peas, pineapple, sweetpotatoes, and tomatoes. Add 17,402,000 pounds of beef canned in natural juices, 49,430,000 pounds of frozen beef, and 37,320,000 pounds of cut - up frozen chickens -- and you have a start toward realizing how much food is used in the National School Lunch Program.

The 3.64 million cases and the more than 100 million pounds of beef and chicken represent special, direct, purchases of food made by the Federal Government for the 1965-66 school year for public and private schools participating in the National School Lunch Program. Such purchases are made through the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, which administers the school lunch program nationally. They are designed to help participating schools meet the nutritional needs of their pupil - consumers. The foods cost about $60-million.

But these federal purchases are only the beginning of the NSLP food needs -- only, in fact, a few servings for some 18 million hungry school lunchers. In addition, school lunch programs are also eligible to receive food acquired by the government under price support and surplus removal programs. In an average year these foods amount to $125 million in value. Schools participating in the program across the nation will buy locally about 80 percent of the total food used in the School Lunch Program. For fiscal 1966, these local food purchases are expected to reach $790 - million.

The National School Lunch Program thus aids local economies by purchasing substantial portions of its food from local merchants. Total program costs, including food, labor, and other expenses, are expected to reach $1.5 billion in fiscal 1966. This represents a sizable industry, benefiting many adults directly with jobs and business opportunities. More importantly, though, is the satisfaction of seeing children well fed.

The National School Lunch Program promotes markets for food. Different menus everyday encourage students to eat a variety of food and thereby establish good dietary habits. These good habits follow the students into their adult lives when they become purchasers of food. Many foods, regional staples for generations, have become national favorites -- thanks to the universality of the National School Lunch Program. Such foods include rice and cornmeal. Cornbread, for example, has become such a favorite in some schools that students virtually demand that it be served at least once a week -- and this in areas where it was unknown before 1946.

National School Lunch specialists have also encouraged the use of many other foods that local lunchroom managers now find almost indispensable in their menu planning -- dry milk, dried eggs, dehydrated potatoes and many others. Canned fruits such as pears and plums have also found wider acceptance.

Furtive Feeler

MCNAMARA'S SPEECH in Montreal, delivered to the American Society of Newspaper Editors has been identified as A TRIAL BALLOON for universal "service" in a front page article by Jack A. Smith, writer for the NATIONAL GUARDIAN, one of the official organs of the Communist Party, U.S.A., in its May 28, 1966 edition.

Robert Strange McNamara, obviously speaking with the advice and consent of the Johnson Administration, appealed to the idealism of youth, referring to it as "a committed and dedicated generation" which by and large it is, if we exclude the small but noisy segment of draft card incinerators, dizzy demonstrators, sexual slobs and just plain punks.

He stated, with some accuracy, that " as matters now stand, our present selective systems draw on only a minority of eligible young men. This is an inequity." He goes on to propose that this inequity should be remedied by "asking every young person in the United States to give two years of service to his country -- whether in one of the military services, in the Peace Corps or in some volunteer developmental work at home or abroad."

The GUARDIAN article speculates this feeler might have had some connection with a "freedom draft card" pledge distributed by the STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY (SDS), which reads "I want to build, not burn . . . The efforts of many young Americans in civil rights and community organization are prime examples of what I want to do." This is an intriguing line of thought, in view of the Administration's record to date of catering to the views of organizations ranging from pink to pimento in ideological coloration.

PAUL BOOTH, National Secretary of SDS, said his organization, characterized by the GUARDIAN as the "largest of the radical (read Communist serving) student groups," does not "oppose a voluntary free-choice alternative service which would grant young people the option of working with non-government organizations, such as SDS itself, the American Friends Service Committee, or in community organization projects in the slums."

Now wouldn't THAT be dandy!!

At taxpayer expense, no doubt!! And this is probably an interpretation which the Socialist Society would be likely to buy.

The article disclosed that a Pentagon study of the draft, completed in 1965 but buried for 13 months, has been "re - oriented in the direction of universal service and will be completed and published next month." Smith speculated that McNamara's pronouncement "appeared to be part of an Administration move to inspire public approval for the universal public service concept which, if acceptable, would be promulgated in the Pentagon draft report."

In a recent SENTRY POST column, Albert T. Koen declares this is "a concept of the relationship between the government and the people which SHOULD SEND COLD CHILLS up the spine of every American who values freedom (which) belongs in Hitler's Germany, Mussolini's Italy, Soviet Russia and Mao's China." "Americans," he insists, "are not vassals of the State, to be herded into work camps to serve the government." Well not yet, perhaps -- but we're getting there -- and with McNamara's help the pace is accelerating!

It's not difficult to understand the tentative acceptance of this concept by the GUARDIAN writer, and the lefties he quotes. This is right down their alley. There's no assurance that, once the principle is accepted, the period of service will remain at two years. There's no logical reason the age bracket can't be expanded to include the entire population. And how long will it be until the camps in which these trainees are quartered, all over the world, will be tastefully decorated with barbed wire?

The evidence is all about us, if we will only open our eyes.

How far will the AMERICAN SHEEP follow the JUDAS GOATS of socialism, masquerading under the guise of a benevolent Great Society? All the way up the ramp to the slaughter house?

The day is far spent.

OR HAS THE HOUR ALREADY STRUCK?

Give Carol An 'A' for Fresh Faces

NEW YORK (AP) — Regardless of her show's grades, Carol Burnett rates an "A" and the audiences' gratitude for getting some new faces and fresh talent into her specials.

Sunday night, in her first CBS outing of the season, Miss Burnett came up with Rock Hudson and Ken Berry. Both gentlemen have had considerable exposure to audiences, but never before in the context of a musical variety show.

Hudson with a pleasant singing voice, entered into the spirit of a rough house sketch with Carol with considerable uncertainty but enthusiasm.

The most attractive and surprising guest star was Ken Berry. He is comedian in the weekly series, "F Troop," and plays the captain who is forever tripping over his sword. But Sunday night after a series of comedy falls, he strolled into a nimble dance solo which was a professional imitation of early Fred Astaire style.

Frank Gorshin, the impressionist, the only variety show veteran on the show, even turned temporarily into a singer — after he went through his usual series of imitations.

It was a tuneful, bright if not particularly inspired hour. Most of all though, it provided a nice change from the usual guest star lineup which seems to consist of the same people turning up on one show after another with approximately the same routines and songs.

The Burnett special was part of a curious programing set-up. It followed two previous hours CBS devoted to variety shows. Three solid hours of this sort of thing is a little excessive.

"The Garry Moore Show" which preceded it, seems to have picked up a little needed steam, although its sketches and comedy material generally remain on the lackluster side.

The effort Sunday night was to get funny answers to questions about air pollution, but none was forthcoming.

But the song and dance numbers were bright and sprightly and the production numbers handsome. The show is increasing its writing staff with some well-known comedy writing talent, which ought to start paying off within the next couple of weeks. And last night was a marked improvement over the earlier shows.

Boys 15 and 10 Pull Guns in Theft Scuffle

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two brothers, one 15 and the other 10, got into a scuffle Sunday with a supermarket employe in suburban Overland Park, Kan., who said he saw the boys try to sneak out of the store with a pair of expensive tape recorders.

In the scuffle, a .22 caliber pistol was fired twice and a .32 caliber tear gas pen went off. No one was hurt. Police said a customer disarmed the boys.

Jerry D. Robb, the supermarket's assistant manager, said the older pulled the pistol and ordered him to release his brother. Robb said he complied then jumped the one who had the gun.

Jerry Appleton, the customer who took the weapons away from the boys, said, "That little one shot at me. You just don't think of a little kid shooting at you. I grabbed the other gun, and the little one shot at me."

Overland Park police said the parents of the boys were located in Dallas and informed of the incident. They were placed overnight in the county detention home at Olathe, Kan. Their names were withheld by authorities under state law governing juveniles.

Today In History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1913, the Gamboa Dike, the last obstruction to navigation through the Panama Canal was removed and the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans were united.

On this date:

In 1941, the British announced commandos were being trained for an invasion.

Ten years ago - The United States, Britain and France sent brief, identical messages to the Soviet Union urging the Kremlin to resume talks with the Western Allies on the reunification of Germany.

Five years ago-West Berlin sources reported 50,000 Soviet combat troops and some 10,000 Polish Communist troops had arrived in East Germany. Ostensibly they were sent to take part in Warsaw Pact maneuvers, but Western observers speculated the newly arrived forces would remain in East Germany.

One year ago - U.S. paratroopers killed 46 Viet Cong guerrillas near Saigon as thousands of American troops in South Viet Nam joined government forces in a giant sweep of the country's central highlands.

JACK O' LANTERN

Today's children carve faces into pumpkins as a special treat for Halloween. They set the candle-illuminated jack o'lanterns by the doors of their homes or in the center of party tables.

Back in the days when ghosts and goblins walked at night and there were no lighted roads, people were afraid to go abroad after dark. It was obvious that a human being was no match for a ghost or goblin.

Then someone had the idea of carrying a lighted face so frightening that no creature of darkness would approach the person who carried it. Thus was the jack o'lantern born.

The more fierce the face, obviously the better it was to ward off the evil spirits. And the light inside, sometimes a bright coal, more often a candle, not only helped frighten the ghosts but also providentially, lighted the way.

It is not known at what period in history jack o'lanterns changed hands, from being made by adults to being made by children. Probably it was after ghosts and goblins were recognized for what they are and highways sported lights or, at least, police protection. But the jack o'lanterns still are used for exorcizing witches!

JACK O' LANTERN

A fierce face used to be more of an asset than it is now — see article for reasons why.

Today's children carve faces into pumpkins as a special treat for Halloween. They set the candle-illuminated jack o'lanterns by the doors of their homes or in the center of party tables.

In former times adults were the carvers of these faces and their use was more utilitarian.

Back in the days when ghosts and goblins walked at night and there were no lighted roads, people were afraid to go abroad after dark. It was obvious that a human being was no match for a ghost or goblin.

Then someone had the idea of carrying a lighted face so frightening that no creature of darkness would approach the person who carried it. Thus was the jack o'lantern born.

The more fierce the face, obviously the better it was to ward off the evil spirits. And the light inside, sometimes a bright coal, more often a candle, not only helped frighten the ghosts but also providentially, lighted the way.

It is not known at what period in history jack o'lanterns changed hands, from being made by adults to being made by children. Probably it was after ghosts and goblins were recognized for what they are and highways sported lights or, at least, police protection. But the jack o'lanterns still are used for exorcising witches!

HOW TO TAKE CARE OF YOUR PLUMBING

It pays to take care of your plumbing -- for three good reasons: 1. The whole family is inconvenienced when something breaks down. 2. Plumbing repairs don't come cheap. 3. Plumbing represents about 10 per cent of the home's value and should be in good condition if you decide to sell.

A booklet that tells you how to maintain your plumbing in good condition, how to make simple repairs, and what repair jobs should be done only by qualified plumbing contractors is available for 25 cents from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Texans Lend Support to Agricultural Hall of Fame

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) -- a group of Texans are planning to build their own pavilion at Kansas City area museum devoted to preserving earlyday farming equipment.

Chairman of the campaign to build the pavilion at the Agricultural Hall of Fame and National Center at Bonner Springs, Kan., and to collect the Texas implements for it is K.D. Jones of San Antonio.

Gov. John Connally has given the Texas project formal endorsement.

The center was chartered by Congress and opened to the public in June, 1965. Visitors have come from all states and 20 foreign countries.

Kenneth T. Anderson of San Antonio is chairman of the national board of governors and more than 20 states already are actively supporting the center.

Texas will be the first state to build its own pavilion, although Missouri, Illinois and Wisconsin also are organizing campaigns to do so.

Elmo J. Mahoney, curator of the center, says there are two major classes of visitors.

"Thousands of our older visitors grew up on farms and they come to remember the old days and to tell their children about them. The other group, which will grow in importance through the years, is that segment of our population that has never been on a farm and is really amazed at the type of equipment, household items and tools that have been used on farms and ranches."

"We hope to start building the Texas pavilion late this fall and our campaign is now in full swing," Jones said.

The Telephone Pitch

By JOHN GOULD In The Christian Science Monitor

Lisbon Falls, Maine

The great freedom from cark and care that prevails in the unburdened countryside has been invaded by the telephone pitch. I always answer the telephone with the presumption that somebody's house is on fire, or there is some reasonable variation of that theme, and I maintain this service at great expense so I can talk to people I want to talk to, or people I want to can talk to me.

But this morning it wasn't a house on fire at all, or any reasonable variation, it was a lady who wanted to send me a credit card for a discount department store, and she wanted a quick run-down of my references. Next time I shall probably hang up, but this time I eased her off.

So, I am now on the No. 1 Sucker List just because I rent a telephone. Some say I should have an unlisted number, but not long ago a man ordered some wood, and when I tried to find out if he wanted it at home or his cottage the operator told me he had an unlisted number. I took it to his home, and he wanted it at his cottage. There is justice in my wail. The unlisted number, when I have reason to call it, detracts from the value of my telephone to me. When the telephone company permits calls that I do not want to invade my bucolic privacy, it detracts from the value, to me. Would it be all right if I deduct $10 from my phone bill every time I feel I am abused?

I find, by discreet and casual inquiry, that the telephone company is aware of most of this. If you wish, you can have a battery of telephones installed in a motel suite and hire women to make consecutive calls to numbers in the directory -- the directory being supplied by the telephone company. This is complicity, of course. This woman who wanted to give me call her back after I thought it over, since she was not using the store's telephone. A special line, I take it, so it isn't even a reasonable part of the store's commercial service.

Not long ago a woman called and said I was the lucky winner of a free lesson at the Cosmopolitan Studio of the Dance. The call came at 11:24 p.m. an hour after I had shed my cummerbund and pumps and had retired for the night. The other day a man called and wanted to know if I was happy with my present investment service, and if not he would like to visit me and suggest some new investments for my portfolio.

And one day a woman called to learn if I knew her shop was having a drastic sale of underthings. I had to admit I didn't know about the sale, but I submit gently that I know how to look up numbers myself, and that if I need dancing lessons, securities advice, and dainty lingerie I am capable of imitating the required introductions. I do not pay good money so these people can call me. I yearn for old-time calm when a ringing telephone just meant a fire, or something.

There is no satisfaction in a counterirritant. The thing is predicated on a percentage success, and they just shrug off the wise-guy and the freak, like me. They figure they'll get two-three takers out of a hundred calls, and the voice you hear is just a hired-hand for the background scheme.

A few evenings back our telephone rang. It was another of these rackets. "Good evening," she said. "This is Miss Sugar Candee of the National Fact Finding Corporation, and I wonder if you would mind answering a few questions?" ("It's one of those," I whispered to my wife aside, "let's see what this one is about.")

"No," I said. "What seems to be on your mind?"

"Thank you, you are very kind," she purred. "Were you just now looking at television?"

"No." I said. "I was down cellar putting more green ink on my money - printing machine."

"Oh?" she said. I could see this bent the trend of her rehearsed approach.

"Well," she said. "Do you watch television slightly, medium, or frequently?"

"Indifferently," I said.

She said, "Do you ever watch the Andy Williams show?"

"Yes," I said, "We never miss it. We think it's the funniest program on the air!"

"But, he's not supposed to be a comedian -- he's a singer," she said.

I said, "Did you ever turn the sound down and just watch his mouth go?"

But, as I say, it's no fun to rib the voice, because that's not getting back to the seat of the complaint. This one turned out to be a magazine subscription come-on, and I supposed she turned and said, "That one was a freak, I'll dial somebody else."

I got rid of her by saying, "The number you have dialed is out of order, this is a recording," and then I went back to making counterfeit money, which is a crime, but not so bad as some others.

FIRE

PREVENTION WEEK
OCTOBER 9TH - 15TH

You can never be too careful when it comes to preventing fire! That's why good safety habits at home, at work, at play are the rule, never the exception. At home, check often to guard against accumulation of flammable debris, faulty wiring, other fire hazards. At work, obey fire department regulations to the letter. At play, make sure campfires are out, dead out. Caution now may save lives later.

"Thank you, you are very kind," she purred. "Were you just now looking at television?"

"No." I said. "I was down cellar putting more green ink on my money - printing machine."

"Oh?" she said. I could see this bent the trend of her rehearsed approach.

"Well," she said. "Do you watch television slightly, medium, or frequently?"

"Indifferently," I said.

She said, "Do you ever watch the Andy Williams show?"

"Yes," I said, "We never miss it. We think it's the funniest program on the air!"

"But, he's not supposed to be a comedian -- he's a singer," she said.

I said, "Did you ever turn the sound down and just watch his mouth go?"

But, as I say, it's no fun to rib the voice, because that's not getting back to the seat of the complaint. This one turned out to be a magazine subscription come-on, and I supposed she turned and said, "That one was a freak, I'll dial somebody else."

I got rid of her by saying, "The number you have dialed is out of order, this is a recording," and then I went back to making counterfeit money, which is a crime, but not so bad as some others.

PREVENT FIRES

FIRE

OCTOBER 9TH - 15TH

You can never be too careful when it comes to preventing fire! That's why good safety habits at home, at work, at play are the rule, never the exception. At home, check often to guard against accumulation of flammable debris, faulty wiring, other fire hazards. At work, obey fire department regulations to the letter. At play, make sure campfires are out, dead out. Caution now may save lives later.

Veteran Reporter, 85, Began as Cub in 1899

By MARGUERITE MITCHELL
Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — At age 85, Charles Spencer Dudley has been a newspaper reporter for more than 65 years. And he says that if he had it all to do over again he'd still be a reporter.

CHARLES S. DUDLEY

"I guess I'm not ambitious, not wanting to be an editor," says Dudley, with a twinkle in his eye, "but I just always wanted to be a reporter."

Dudley has been reporting on the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph continuously for 48 years. Since 1960 he has been writing his "I Remember" column for the paper. In earlier life he worked on newspapers in his native Iowa (he was born Mar. 22, 1881 at Grinnell), in Missouri, in Colorado and in California.

Dudley recalls that when he first went to work as a cub reporter on the Denver Post in 1899 all reporters but one wrote their stories with a pencil. The one reporter who had a typewriter locked it up when he left the office.

At the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette, where he went the following year, Dudley was told he'd have to use a typewriter. He recalls:

"I sat up all night practicing 'Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party.' I had an awful toothache, but sat up all night anyway, practicing. The next morning I knew how to run a typewriter."

Dudley points out that in those days all vehicles, including ambulances, fire equipment and patrol wagons, were horse-drawn. Taxicabs, too, were equine-powered but reporters seldom could afford them.

He was on the Los Angeles Examiner in 1906 when the great earthquake struck San Francisco. He was given expense money in gold and told to head for the disaster. He took a horse-drawn cab to the depot, but missed the train for San Francisco.

It was a crestfallen young reporter who returned to the Examiner where his angry city editor made him fork over the fare he'd paid the cabbie.

Dudley recalls a departed breed of editor who reigned at one paper where he had applied for a job.

"While I was waiting to talk to someone about a job, a woman writer walked over to an editor," he said. "She was holding a piece of copy. She told the editor she had cut the story as close as she could — as he had requested — but couldn't cut it any more.

"So the editor grabbed it and said he'd take care of it. He reached for his scissors, whacked the story in two, letting the excess fall into his waste basket. The lady left in a huff."

Dudley was at the scene when William Jennings Bryan, Teddy Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson spoke. He photographed Charles Evans Hughes when Hughes campaigned in California for the presidency and in 1910 he watched the passage of Halley's comet.

Last year he was honored by 800 Colorado publishers, editors and newspaper employes at the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver. The occasion was the award of the Colorado Press Association's "Golden Makeup Rule," for his more than half a century in the Fourth Estate.

Dudley does his share of work and does it well, including the editing of stories from "country correspondents." He devotes as much attention to a brief local story as he does to an important obituary or to the fire department, which he covers by telephone.

He no longer goes out on a story because he was turned down recently for renewal of his driver's license.

The examiner apologetically told Dudley he could not renew the license because of his eyesight. Dudley later told friends: "He didn't know I couldn't hear him very well, either."

Scott County Health Center
1965 Annual Report

MENTAL RETARDATION AND MENTAL HEALTH

Conferences with private physicians 28;
Field visits to patients 182;
Total number of services 400;
Hours spent doing Mental Health and Mental Retardation 445.5 hrs.

For years, Scott County has been able to get a single child admitted to the State School for the Feeble - minded at Marshall. A child must be entered before the age of 21; but once there, he may stay for the rest of his natural life. We have one woman there who is about 70 years old. Each county has a quota. Once this number is reached, that county can admit no one else until someone is removed or dies.

In 1965, after we had written the school off as a resource, two families were sent instructions for dental corrections, immunizations and clothing needed for their retarded daughters, and they were accepted. The Health Department also gave the necessary "shots" to a pleasant Cape Girardeau mongoloid boy who was in a foster home in this county. He was not, however, counted in our quota.

The Scott County Health Department helped more patients get into State Hospital No. 4 at Farmington in 1965 than ever before. This was probably because people are asking for help sooner with their mental problems. They now see the hospital and its traveling clinics at Cape Girardeau and Dexter as places where they can receive beneficial treatment rather than as holes in which to crawl while waiting death. Patients who were hospitalized were returned to their own communities as soon as possible, and were then followed by attending the travelling clinics.

The Health Department personnel were and are excellent listners. Patients were able to visit either in person or by telephone, and were given time to talk over their problems. Some were regular visitors. Others found help by calling only once or twice. This, too, was good mental health.

How to Read Your Newspaper

Papers Are Edited and Arranged To Make Selective Reading Easy

(Newspapers are read more today than at any time in America's history. How about the young newspaper reader – the student? It is essential for him to know that his daily newspaper will help him to understand the economics, social and political problems which will confront him. The following article is taken from a guide to newspaper reading, prepared with the help of educators by the Rochester (N.Y.) Times-Union and the Democrat and Chronicle. It tells young readers what their newspaper does and how to get the most out of their reading.)

To develop a broad interest in contemporary affairs, a student should go about his newspaper reading in a systematic way. His reading should include the articles and editorials that at first seem to be foreign to his everyday interests and pursuits.

Once this broad interest is developed he will absorb his classroom work more readily, because names, places and events will mean more than merely words in a textbook.

There is no "best" way to develop a systematic way of reading the newspaper. It depends upon the individual, his primary interests and objectives. We find that most readers turn first to departments or pages of their newspaper which interest them most. This method is recommended, instead of reading from front page to back as you would a novel.

Like A Close Friend

Newspapers are edited and arranged to make selective reading easy and convenient. Most have a more or less fixed style and order in their presentation of various types of news – such as sports, financial, features, comics, etc.

This fixed "make-up" is important to convenient reading. We become used to it – feel at home with it. When we buy a newspaper in a city away from home it may seem strange and foreign to us. Our hometown newspaper is like a close friend – a member of the family.

A good rule is to start your newspaper reading at that department which satisfies most – whether it is sports, social, financial or any other section. When a man is both hungry and thirsty, he will drink before he eats, Having drunk, he enjoys his food more.

Once the compelling interests are satisfied, motivation for further reading changes. Now, we are looking for an answer to the question, "What's new?" And generally we turn to page one because in making up the newspaper, editors have tried to present on the first page the stories they think are of the most importance to the most readers.

Leads to Greater Interest

The more any person reads about events the more interested he is bound to become in them. The more informed he becomes, the more he feels he is actually a part of them. That is why it is so vital in our democracy to strive to develop interest in political and governmental affairs at all levels. There is no easier way to do this than newspaper reading. In fact, there is no other convenient way to keep abreast of local affairs.

An added benefit accrues to the regular newspaper reader. The more he is informed and interested in events, the more interesting he is to those around him.

Facts And Opinion

It is necessary to develop critical judgment, to learn to read FACT as fact, someone's OPINION as opinion.

Facts are important, and the newspapers deal principally in facts. However, if the student is to gain insight into the major problems that confront the world he lives in, the problems he must face later, he must know what other people do and think about these facts.

We might hear a statement such as this:

"I read in the paper that pensions to veterans are going to be cut."

If the reader had analyzed carefully the story he had read, he would have known that a government official made the statement that the pensions should be cut. The newspaper was quoting what the official said; the reader considered it as a fact.

This should be a rule – whenever we read a news story, we must discern which part is reported as fact and which part is someone's opinion related to these facts.

Editors On Guard

Editors are constantly on guard against hidden opinions in news stories. Statements and opinions by others are so labeled, but the careless newspaper reader may confuse them. The newspaper's own opinions generally are confined to the editorial page.

The importance of reading opinions needs to be emphasized. When a newspaper story reports the facts concerning an issue, the story often contains statements regarding the facts, made by persons in authority. These are necessarily limited in scope because stories are edited to do the best possible job of informing in the least amount of space. News stories on a single subject often appear as sequence over a period of days. Therefore, to become fully informed, it is necessary to follow the subject from day to day until it is exhausted.

In the study of the editorial page, it is necessary to consider its function. Any newspaper worth its salt must stand for something. A publisher has the right and considers it his duty, to take a stand on any issue of importance. He does this every day, but he does it on the editorial page where every reader will know it is his opinion, or the opinion of his editorial staff.

Readers Voice Opinions

No one can intelligently make up his mind regarding any issue without knowing other people's opinions on the subject. Readers look to the newspaper for its opinions, not necessarily to accept them, but to guide the readers in forming their own opinions.

It has become common practice to include on the editorial page such inspirational material as the newspaper chooses to publish.

The editorial page is important to the news. It is good practice to read a story and then, if it is of enough importance, turn to the editorial page to see if the newspaper has an opinion on the subject. You may find, in addition to an editorial, that columnists who are recognized for their ability to analyze news are discussing the same subject.

Another rule might be: read opinions of issues reported in the news as you follow the news itself, in order to help yourself arrive at your own intelligent interpretation.

Local Issues Covered

News of importance is not confined to the national and international level. It is equally important to be well-informed regarding local issues, events and personalities. Perhaps even more important, because these things affect your life directly every day.

Unlike news from distant points which reaches the newspaper through correspondents and organized news services, local news is gathered and written by your own neighbors who are employed by the newspapers.

While the primary function of the newspaper is to print the news, editors strive to present a family package, which in addition to the news columns includes many features designed to entertain the readers. Bits of humor and inspiration add spice to reading. Also, there are special departments designed to help the reader in all sorts of pursuits from gardening to dressmaking.

Who died? Who had a baby? Where was the fire? Who was married? The newspaper records the vital statistics of the community, the social life of its people. Even beyond this, the newspaper is the "messenger" for every worthwhile organization which must get its message before the people in order to succeed in its undertaking.

Serves The Community

Churches, schools, fraternal organizations, character-building agencies and others reach the community through newspapers. This is the newspaper's responsibility to its readers and the community it serves. Other media contribute, but only in the printed page, with its mass readership, can the job be done in detail.

Advertisers invest about $4.5 billion in newspaper advertising in a single year. The reason for this vast expenditure is the tremendous mass penetration of newspapers into the homes of every community in the country.

Advertising in our newspapers falls into three general classifications:

1. National advertising which is prepared and published in newspapers by manufacturers or distributors of products. These advertisements are designed to inform the reader about products, including new ones, their points of superiority, and/or to keep a product name before the public.

2. Local retail advertising is, among other things, an important service to the newspaper reader because it tells him where and when he can obtain items and the price he will pay.

3. Want ads are the market place for thousands of little businessmen and individuals who have merchandise or services to sell. Want ads help find lost articles and pets, help people find jobs and homes, among other things.

Aids Good Citizenship

Newspapermen bring us together mentally and emotionally. It has been said that when a person reads a newspaper regularly and intelligently he will become well-versed on almost every subject. Regular newspaper reading is essential to good citizenship. Instead of gathering the people together, modern democracy hands each individual a newspaper that has gathered the discussion of public affairs into a convenient form.

A generation ago, Nobel Peace Prize winner Sir Norman Angell wrote:

"If people are to be in a position to judge the conduct of their government, to decide whether it is doing well or ill, to decide the merits of public policy at all; if, indeed, they are to preserve the capacity for sound judgment, they must have facts before them not only as the government would have them put, but also as those who disagree with the government may desire to put them."

Men who wheel and deal at a four-martini lunch are apt to forget what was wheeled and what was dealed.

An Editor's Outlook

'TIN CANS' AND STEEL CABLE, NAVY'S STILL IRON SHIPS AND MEN.

ABOARD THE USS CORAL SEA IN THE TONKIN GULF -- I spent the night aboard the destroyer JOHN R. CRAIG.

If the admiral will humor you it's a thrill to ride the high line across the boiling water between two ships -- one of those safe thrills that newsmen over 50 like.

Besides, a tin can is more fun -- the clubby atmosphere of the small - but - mighty power pack and more informality between officers and crew.

At the evening movie in the cozy wardroom it's hard to grasp the fact of war. But just over the horizon to the east is China's Hianan Island, and 80 miles to the west, two degrees above the demarcation line, a major strike is being planned by the Navy air arm. The job is to interdict the supply lines to the Vietcong in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's most northerly province.

DAWN AND THE helicopter. The fast buckle into the harness as the roaring chopper hovers 20 feet above the pitching deck. The quick hoist on the steel cable, the unceremonious dumping aboard, and the last three-minute flight to the carrier deck.

This is to be a big day. Fifty-five thousand U. S. Marines of the First Corps and the Third Marine Amphibious Force are engaged in a bloody struggle to stop, encircle and, if possible, overrun the big campaign of North Vietnam regulars to gain a long - needed victory. For captured enemy documents have indicated that the conquest of the whole Quang Tri Province is in the plans.

The Coral Sea's squadrons are to hit Thanh Hoa, a little town 120 miles south of Haiphong, North Vietnam, where the road runs down the coastal plain. Every bridge blasted, every railroad yard obliterated, every truck destroyed means that more of the Russian, Czech and Chinese mortar and recoilless rifle shells must be carried south by human back.

THE CORAL SEA is one of our second - largest carrier-class warships. Its flight deck launching planes by catapult while it receives planes on a canted runway. It carries 3,600 men at speeds up to 35 miles an hour. It has no guns or torpedoes. Its offensive punch and defensive shield are the squadrons of twin - jet A3Bs and F4Bs, the single - engined supersonic Crusaders, the little Skyhawks, and the old, reliable, piston-engined Douglas Skyraiders.

Along the flight lines the bombs move in tiny trains -- bombs for real that bear no resemblance to the World War II variety, but which are armed with fuses of great complexity.

The jets don't roar -- they scream. What you don't hear are the high frequencies that could deafen the unprotected ear in a few weeks. And the 200 - foot steam catapult sends these angry banshees into the blue sky of the tropic morning.

a fishing village. Today there are five solid miles of dumps, warehouses and port installations, and the harbor is crowded with ships.

At Da Nang the results are even more spectacular. Last winter its port could accommodate a few coastal junks, and some small oilers.

Today its deep - water piers support 80,000 fighting men. Seven thousand U. S. Navy men are building a harbor that is an engineering marvel. Huge prefabricated docks are being transported in pieces across the Pacific.

In the past 30 days the equivalent of 2,200 boxcars of war material was off - loaded and the work has only begun.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO, when the U. S. Navy was gradually turning to ironclads, the old frigate sailors used to sniff: "Wooden ships and iron men; iron ships and wooden men."

Watching the operation of the 7th Fleet off Vietnam will remove any doubts -- even from men who remember the proud days of World War II -- that we are in the age of iron ships and iron men.

How to Read Your Newspaper

Papers Are Edited and Arranged To Make Selective Reading Easy

(Newspapers are read more today than at any time in America's history. How about the young newspaper reader – the student? It is essential for him to know that his daily newspaper will help him to understand the economics, social and political problems which will confront him. The following article is taken from a guide to newspaper reading, prepared with the help of educators by the Rochester (N.Y.) Times-Union and the Democrat and Chronicle. It tells young readers what their newspaper does and how to get the most out of their reading.)

To develop a broad interest in contemporary affairs, a student should go about his newspaper reading in a systematic way. His reading should include the articles and editorials that at first seem to be foreign to his everyday interests and pursuits.

Once this broad interest is developed he will absorb his classroom work more readily, because names, places and events will mean more than merely words in a textbook.

There is no "best" way to develop a systematic way of reading the newspaper. It depends upon the individual, his primary interests and objectives. We find that most readers turn first to departments or pages of their newspaper which interest them most. This method is recommended, instead of reading from front page to back as you would a novel.

Like A Close Friend

Newspapers are edited and arranged to make selective reading easy and convenient. Most have a more or less fixed style and order in their presentation of various types of news – such as sports, financial, features, comics, etc.

This fixed "make-up" is important to convenient reading. We become used to it – feel at home with it. When we buy a newspaper in a city away from home it may seem strange and foreign to us. Our hometown newspaper is like a close friend – a member of the family.

A good rule is to start your newspaper reading at that department which satisfies most – whether it is sports, social, financial or any other section. When a man is both hungry and thirsty, he will drink before he eats. Having drunk, he enjoys his food more.

Once the compelling interests are satisfied, motivation for further reading changes. Now, we are looking for an answer to the question, "What's new?" And generally we turn to page one because in making up the newspaper, editors have tried to present on the first page the stories they think are of the most importance to the most readers.

Leads to Greater Interest

The more any person reads about events the more interested he is bound to become in them. The more informed he becomes, the more he feels he is actually a part of them. That is why it is so vital in our democracy to strive to develop interest in political and governmental affairs at all levels. There is no easier way to do this than newspaper reading. In fact, there is no other convenient way to keep abreast of local affairs.

An added benefit accrues to the regular newspaper reader. The more he is informed and interested in events, the more interesting he is to those around him.

Facts And Opinion

It is necessary to develop critical judgment, to learn to read FACT as fact, someone's OPINION as opinion.

Facts are important, and the newspapers deal principally in facts. However, if the student is to gain insight into the major problems that confront the world he lives in, the problems he must face later, he must know what other people do and think about these facts.

We might hear a statement such as this:

"I read in the paper that pensions to veterans are going to be cut."

If the reader had analyzed carefully the story he had read, he would have known that a government official made the statement that the pensions should be cut. The newspaper was quoting what the official said; the reader considered it as a fact.

This should be a rule – whenever we read a news story, we must discern which part is reported as fact and which part is someone's opinion related to these facts.

Editors On Guard

Editors are constantly on guard against hidden opinions in news stories. Statements and opinions by others are so labeled, but the careless newspaper reader may confuse them. The newspaper's own opinions generally are confined to the editorial page.

The importance of reading opinions needs to be emphasized. When a newspaper story reports the facts concerning an issue, the story often contains statements regarding the facts, made by persons in authority. These are necessarily limited in scope because stories are edited to do the best possible job of informing in the least amount of space. News stories on a single subject often appear as sequence over a period of days. Therefore, to become fully informed, it is necessary to follow the subject from day to day until it is exhausted.

In the study of the editorial page, it is necessary to consider its function. Any newspaper worth its salt must stand for something. A publisher has the right and considers it his duty, to take a stand on any issue of importance. He does this every day, but he does it on the editorial page where every reader will know it is his opinion, or the opinion of his editorial staff.

Readers Voice Opinions

No one can intelligently make up his mind regarding any issue without knowing other people's opinions on the subject. Readers look to the newspaper for its opinions, not necessarily to accept them, but to guide the readers in forming their own opinions.

It has become common practice to include on the editorial page such inspirational material as the newspaper chooses to publish.

The editorial page is important to the news. It is good practice to read a story and then, if it is of enough importance, turn to the editorial page to see if the newspaper has an opinion on the subject. You may find, in addition to an editorial, that columnists who are recognized for their ability to analyze news are discussing the same subject.

Another rule might be: read opinions of issues reported in the news as you follow the news itself, in order to help yourself arrive at your own intelligent interpretation.

Local Issues Covered

News of importance is not confined to the national and international level. It is equally important to be well-informed regarding local issues, events and personalities. Perhaps even more important, because these things affect your life directly every day.

Unlike news from distant points which reaches the newspaper through correspondents and organized news services, local news is gathered and written by your own neighbors who are employed by the newspapers.

While the primary function of the newspaper is to print the news, editors strive to present a family package, which in addition to the news columns includes many features designed to entertain the readers. Bits of humor and inspiration add spice to reading. Also, there are special departments designed to help the reader in all sorts of pursuits from gardening to dressmaking.

Who died? Who had a baby? Where was the fire? Who was married? The newspaper records the vital statistics of the community, the social life of its people. Even beyond this, the newspaper is the "messenger" for every worthwhile organization which must get its message before the people in order to succeed in its undertaking.

Serves The Community

Churches, schools, fraternal organizations, character-building agencies and others reach the community through newspapers. This is the newspaper's responsibility to its readers and the community it serves. Other media contribute, but only in the printed page, with its mass readership, can the job be done in detail.

Advertisers invest about $4.5 billion in newspaper advertising in a single year. The reason for this vast expenditure is the tremendous mass penetration of newspapers into the homes of every community in the country.

Advertising in our newspapers falls into three general classifications:

1. National advertising which is prepared and published in newspapers by manufacturers or distributors of products. These advertisements are designed to inform the reader about products, including new ones, their points of superiority, and/or to keep a product name before the public.

2. Local retail advertising is, among other things, an important service to the newspaper reader because it tells him where and when he can obtain items and the price he will pay.

3. Want ads are the market place for thousands of little businessmen and individuals who have merchandise or services to sell. Want ads help find lost articles and pets, help people find jobs and homes, among other things.

The pre - dawn strikes are coming back, crossing the apron at speeds of 110 knots in that peculiar, ungainly, nose-high belly - flop that brings clouds of smoke from the tires and draws the wire out with a roar. The returning crews hurry to the readyroom for the debriefing. The hundreds of thousands of training hours are behind it. The CORAL SEA is deep in its business.

BUT THERE'S MORE to the Navy contribution than derringdo. If we want to fight a war 400 miles north of the developed port of Saigon in a land where ground transport is either cut or never existed, we must make beachheads.

Halfway up the coast at Cam Ranh Bay lies one of the finest harbors in Asia, occupied until a year ago by only a fishing village. Today there are five solid miles of dumps, warehouses and port installations, and the harbor is crowded with ships.

At Da Nang the results are even more spectacular. Last winter its port could accommodate a few coastal junks, and some small oilers.
